IN RE
KAUFFMAN MUTUAL FUND ACTIONS.

JOSEPH B. KAUFFMAN,

Petitioner.

PETITION FOR A WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE FIRST CIRCUIT.

Joseph B. Kauffman hereby petitions that a writ of certiorari issue to review the judgment and opinion of the United States Court of Appeals for the First Circuit entered on May 14, 1973 and the memorandum and order on petition for rehearing of the United States Court of Appeals for the First Circuit entered on June 4, 1973.

OPINIONS BELOW.

The opinion of the United States District Court for the District of Massachusetts is not yet officially reported and is printed in the Appendix at pp. A1-A19. The majority and concurring opinions of the United States Court of Appeals for the First Circuit and its memorandum and order on petition for rehearing are not yet officially reported and are printed in the Appendix at pp. A23-A39 and pp. A42-A44, respectively.

JURISDICTION.

The First Circuit's judgment was entered on May 14, 1973 (App., p. A40). Petitioner's timely petition for rehearing was denied on June 4, 1973 (App., pp. A42-A44). The jurisdiction of this Court is invoked under 28 U. S. C. § 1254(1).

QUESTIONS PRESENTED.

Petitioner commenced this action in federal district court under Sections 4 and 16 of the Clayton Act alleging, inter alia, industry-wide violations of the federal antitrust laws by the defendant mutual funds, their investment advisers, their affiliated directors and their trade association representative. Petitioner's complaint alleged the futility of making a demand upon directors (App., p. B3) and the reasons for such futility (App., pp. B7-B9).

Nevertheless, petitioner's derivative suit, on behalf of the four mutual funds in which he was a stockholder, was dismissed by the district court on the procedural grounds that: (a) he had not "shown adequate reason to excuse himself from making a demand on the board of directors" because of a rebuttable statutory presumption contained in the Investment Company Act of 1940 providing that unaffiliated directors are not controlled; and (b) that he had failed to comply with a strict Massachusetts precondition to derivative suits requiring a demand upon and approval by stockholders (App., pp. A9-A19).

On appeal, the United States Court of Appeals for the First Circuit rejected the reasoning of, but reached the same result as, the district court on the director demand issue and failed to reach the district court's disposition of the stockholder demand issue (App., pp. A23-A28). As a result, petitioner's derivative suit was dismissed without opportunity to amend: (a) because he had not made a demand upon the unaffiliated directors of the four mutual funds even though he had alleged that such demand would be futile because their boards of directors, including their unaffiliated directors, had participated in, approved of and acquiesced in the alleged continuing antitrust violations and that their boards of directors, including their unaffiliated directors, were dominated and controlled by their affiliated directors and investment advisers; (b) even though petitioner could have alleged even more explicitly, if he had been afforded the opportunity, that the unaffiliated directors who would have voted on his demand, had he made one, were essentially the same ones that composed the boards of directors when the antitrust violations were approved, renewed and permitted to continue; and (c) because he had not made a demand upon the stockholders of the two Massachusetts mutual funds in which he owned stock, as required by a strict Massachusetts rule, even though the imposition of such a strict state requirement would effectively nullify a federal antitrust action over which the federal district courts have exclusive jurisdiction. The lower courts, moreover, disregarded the additional proof of hostility and futility vividly demonstrated by the fact that the boards of directors had vigorously resisted this action for three years.

Therefore, the questions presented are:

1. May a derivative suit commenced under Rule 23.1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure be dismissed, without opportunity to amend, because demand has not been made upon the unaffiliated directors sitting on the boards of directors of four mutual funds even though:

(a) It was alleged in the complaint that the entire boards of directors, including the unaffiliated directors, had participated in, approved of and acquiesced in the alleged antitrust violations and that the entire boards of directors, including the unaffiliated directors, were dominated and controlled by their affiliated directors and investment advisers;

(b) Petitioner could have alleged even more explicitly, if he had been afforded the opportunity, that the unaffiliated directors who would have voted on petitioner's demand, had he made one, were essentially the same ones that composed the boards when the allegedly illegal contracts in question were approved and the allegedly illegal noncompetition was permitted to continue; and

(c) The boards of directors, including the unaffiliated directors, have been vigorously defending this action for more than three years?

2. May a derivative suit commenced in a federal court under Rule 23.1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, alleging a cause of action based on federal antitrust statutes over which the federal courts have exclusive jurisdiction be dismissed for failure to comply with a state judicially imposed state requirement of prior demand upon and approval by tens of thousands of stockholders, the effect of which would be the nullification of private enforcement of the federal antitrust statutes by derivative suits?

PROCEDURAL RULE INVOLVED.

The procedural rule involved herein, namely Rule 23.1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, provides, in pertinent part, that:

"DERIVATIVE ACTIONS BY SHAREHOLDERS

"In a derivative action brought by one or more shareholders or members to enforce a right of a corporation or of an unincorporated association, the corporation or association having failed to enforce a right which may properly be asserted by it, the complaint shall be verified and shall allege (1) that the plaintiff was a shareholder or member at the time of the transaction of which he complains or that his share or membership thereafter devolved on him by operation of law, and (2) that the action is not a collusive one to confer jurisdiction on a court of the United States which it would not otherwise have. The complaint shall also allege with particularity the efforts, if any, made by the plaintiff to obtain the action he desires from the directors or comparable authority and, if necessary, from the shareholders or members, and the reasons for his failure to obtain the action or for not making the effort. . . ." (Emphasis supplied.)

STATEMENT OF THE CASE.

A. The History of Proceedings Herein.

The ten consolidated Kauffman Mutual Fund actions ("KMF actions") were originally part of one complaint,[1] which had been instituted by petitioner under Sections 4 and 16 of the Clayton Act (15 U. S. C. § 15 and § 26) for treble damages and equitable relief. The gravamen of petitioner's KMF actions was that, since at least 1965 and continuing at least to the filing of the complaint, defendants have engaged in a combination and conspiracy with horizontal and vertical agreements, to fix management fees and to refrain from competition for the business of advising mutual funds and the business of obtaining investment advice in violation of Sections 1 and 2 of the Sherman Act (15 U. S. C. §§ 1 and 2).

Although petitioner's complaint was filed on December 18, 1968, more than four and one half years ago, petitioner has never been permitted to commence any discovery. The reason for this anomalous situation is that, at the threshold of this action, the district court adopted, at defendants' request and over petitioner's vigorous objection, a procedure permitting defendants to file and argue their preliminary motions to dismiss seriatim. Pursuant to this procedure, defendants have been able to forestall all discovery while petitioner was responding to defendants' various motions to dismiss in three separate stages.

Petitioner's standing to sue has been limited to a derivative suit on behalf of the four mutual funds in which he owned stock. Kauffman v. Dreyfus Fund, Inc., 434 F. 2d 727 (3d Cir. 1970) reversing 51 F. R. D. 18 (D. N. J. 1969). Although the Third Circuit also vacated the stay of all proceedings which had prevented petitioner from commencing any discovery, the district court on remand continued to permit defendants to raise and argue their preliminary motions to dismiss seriatim and continued the stay on petitioner's discovery.

1. Petitioner's initial complaint consisted of three counts. However, as the result of a prior interlocutory appeal to the Third Circuit, Kauffman v. Dreyfus Fund, Inc., 434 F. 2d 727 (3d Cir. 1970) cert. denied 401 U. S. 974 (1971), petitioner's complaint was virtually reduced to one count, i.e. petitioner's antitrust action contained in his first count (App., pp. B1-B10).

Thereafter, nearly all of the defendants brought on for disposition their second group of motions attacking jurisdiction over the person, venue and service of process. In order to avoid further delay, petitioner agreed that, as to each moving defendant, the action could be transferred pursuant to 28 U. S. C. § 1406(a) to a district court designated by each of them.

In an effort to reduce court congestion, conserve judicial energies, avoid conflicting discovery demands and rulings and foster uniform results on the merits, petitioner then moved before the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation ("JPML") for pretrial consolidation under 28 U. S. C. § 1407. On January 21, 1972, the JPML ordered the transfer of the KMF actions to the United States District Court for the District of Massachusetts for consolidated pretrial proceedings. In re Kauffman Mutual Fund Actions, 337 F. Supp. 1337 (J. P. M. L. 1972).

B. The Decision of the District Court.

It was not until more than three years after the commencement of this action that defendants filed and brought on for hearing in the district court the third group of their preliminary motions to dismiss.[2] The district court held that: (1) with regard to all four Kauffman funds,[3] petitioner had failed to comply with Rule 23.1 since he had not demonstrated adequate reason to excuse making a demand upon their directors (App., pp. A16-A19); and (2) with regard to the two Kauffman funds incorporated in Massachusetts, petitioner had failed to comply with the strict Massachusetts requirement compelling demand upon and affirmative approval by their tens of thousands of stockholders (App., pp. A9-A16).

The basis for the district court's decision on the director demand issue was defendants' affidavits, which neither denied domination nor asserted independence, but merely alleged that, at the time of the commencement of this action, the majority of the directors of each of the four Kauffman funds were unaffiliated, i.e. not associated in any capacity with its investment adviser. The district court then erroneously concluded that a rebuttable statutory presumption contained in § 2(a)(9) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U. S. C. § 80a-2(a)(9)) established, even at the pleading stage notwithstanding allegations to the contrary, that such unaffiliated directors were irrefutably independent and not controlled and that, because of the rebuttable statutory presumption, petitioner had not "shown adequate reason to excuse himself from making a demand on the boards of directors." (App., pp. A16-A19). The astonishing result of the district court's decision on this issue was that a rebuttable statutory presumption, which was intended solely to shift the burden of proof at trial,[4] was used at the pleading stage to refute petitioner's contrary allegations even though petitioner's repeated requests for discovery had been denied.

3. Hereinafter, the four mutual funds in which petitioner owns stock, namely The Dreyfus Fund, Inc., The Putnam Growth Fund, Fidelity Trend Fund, Inc. and Manhattan Fund, Inc., will be referred to as the "four Kauffman funds."

In reaching its decision on the stockholder demand and approval issue with respect to the two Massachusetts mutual funds, the district court was apparently persuaded by petitioner's arguments (App., pp. A14-A15). However, instead of following the reasoning of the First Circuit's opinion in Levitt v. Johnson, 334 F. 2d 815 (1st Cir. 1964) cert. denied 379 U. S. 961 (1965), the district court expressly relied upon a footnote in the same opinion (App., pp. A15-A16). The incongruous consequence of the district court's decision on this issue was that a complaint commenced under the federal antitrust laws on behalf of four mutual funds was dismissed as to the two Kauffman funds incorporated in Massachusetts, but not as to the two Kauffman funds incorporated in New York, solely because of a failure to comply with a restrictive, non-uniform state policy which admittedly would nullify the federal cause of action.

C. The Decision of the Court of Appeals.

The Court of Appeals, with Chief Judge Coffin writing a concurring opinion, affirmed the holding of the district court on the director demand issue, albeit on completely different grounds, and declined to adjudicate the shareholder demand issue. In affirming, the majority rejected the use of the rebuttable statutory presumption to refute petitioner's complaint,[5] but found that petitioner's allegations were insufficiently particularized to excuse a demand

5. As the panel majority stated (App., p. A28):

"Although certain facts were presented by affidavit, n. 3, ante, basically the motion to dismiss tested the sufficiency, vel non, of the complaint. The presumption supplied by 15 U. S. C. § 80a-2(a)(9) that '[a] natural person shall be presumed not to be a controlled person,' whatever may be its effect at a trial, could not be used to contradict the complaint, if plaintiff is correct that the court so employed it."

upon a board of directors composed of an unaffiliated director majority because:

> (1) Although the unaffiliated directors had vigorously resisted petitioner's suit for more than three years, they had not done so on "substantive" grounds (App., pp. A29-A30);
> (2) Petitioner's complaint failed to allege with sufficient particularity that "the unaffiliated directors who would have voted on [petitioner's] demand in 1968, had he made one, were the same ones (and hence, assertedly, impervious to a demand) that composed the boards when the contracts in question were approved" (App., pp. A30-A31); and
> (3) Unaffiliated director approval of mutual fund transactions, which violated the federal antitrust laws, was immaterial when the court can prima facie conclude that such mutual fund transactions, even though illegal, were serving the interests of the corporation rather than the personal or financial interests of their affiliated directors (App., pp. A31-A36).

In his concurrence, Chief Judge Coffin rejected reasons one and three, but agreed that "the absence of an allegation or indication in the affidavits . . . 'that the unaffiliated directors who would have voted on [petitioner's] demand in 1968, had he made one, were the same ones . . . that composed the boards when the contracts in questions were approved'" was "fatal." (App., pp. A36-A39).

In addition to filing a petition for rehearing, petitioner filed an affidavit[6] demonstrating that, based on sworn statements filed by the four Kauffman funds with the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC"), the unaffiliated directors who would have voted on [petitioner's] demand in December 1968, had he made one, were essentially the same ones that composed the boards when the contracts in question were approved.

The Court of Appeals accepted petitioner's affidavit only for identification purposes (App., p. A41) and denied the petition for rehearing (App., pp. A42-A44). It also rejected petitioner's request that the action be remanded to permit him to amend his complaint so that he could even more explicitly allege that the unaffiliated directors who would have voted on his demand, had he made one, were essentially the same ones that composed the boards when the contracts were approved (App., p. A43). The Court of Appeals' refusal to permit petitioner's amendment was particularly unfair, since petitioner had been contesting defendants' other motions to dismiss for the previous three years, since the Court of Appeals' decision was the first one that found petitioner's pleading deficient in and of itself and since the Court of Appeals knew that petitioner could have alleged facts to overcome its objection.

Upon motion, the Court of Appeals stayed the issuance of its mandate until July 11, 1973 (App., p. A45).

Thus, the basic issue here is whether an unjustifiably narrow reading of the complaint and an erroneous application of Rule 23.1 will be permitted to bar absolutely a shareholder's derivative suit attacking the illegal and harmful practice whereby mutual fund investment advisers fix excessively high management fees and agree not to compete for the investment adviser contracts of each other when such contracts are up for renewal, particularly when petitioner has been given no opportunity to amend his complaint.

REASONS FOR GRANTING THE WRIT.

A. The Decision of the First Circuit Involves Important Issues Regarding the Role of Derivative Suits in the Private Enforcement of Causes of Action Commenced Under the Federal Antitrust and Securities Laws.

This Court has repeatedly emphasized the importance of private enforcement of the antitrust and securities laws:

> ". . . the purposes of the antitrust laws are best served by insuring that the private action will be an ever-present threat to deter anyone contemplating business behavior in violation of the antitrust laws." Perma Life Mufflers, Inc. v. International Parts Corp., 392 U. S. 134, 139 (1968).

> "Congress has expressed its belief that private antitrust litigation is one of the surest weapons for effective enforcement of the antitrust laws." Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. v. New Jersey Wood Finishing Co., 381 U. S. 311, 318 (1965).

Moreover, the role of derivative suits in the private enforcement of the antitrust and securities laws cannot be minimized:

> ". . . derivative suits have played a rather important role in protecting shareholders of corporations from the designing schemes and wiles of insiders who are willing to betray their company's interest in order to enrich themselves." Surowitz v. Hilton Hotels Corp., 383 U. S. 363, 371 (1966).

> "Private enforcement of the proxy rules provides a necessary supplement to Commission action. As in antitrust treble damage litigation, the possibility of civil damages or injunctive relief serves as a most effective weapon in the enforcement of the proxy requirements." J. I. Case Co. v. Borak, 377 U. S. 426, 432 (1964) (derivative suit).

Nowhere has the need for derivative suits been more evident than in the mutual fund industry.[7] As Hamer H. Budge, former chairman of the SEC, explained to Congress:

> "This pattern is commonly referred to as one of external management. It is the traditional way of doing things in the investment company field, but it is hard to conceive of anything like it anywhere else . . . Mutual funds just do not go out to buy advisory . . . services on the open market on the best terms they can get. They are generally tied to their advisers. The adviser sets his price and, typically, the fund pays that price. The arm's-length bargaining element in the ordinary business relationship is completely lacking here.
>
> "The structural arrangements found in this industry create an economic environment in which normal market restraints on managerial compensation are conspicuous by their absence. This is a situation in which insiders usually bargain with themselves. In this type of system, legal controls are needed in order to do what normal market forces can be depended on to do elsewhere.

* * *

7. The continuing congressional concern for the mutual fund industry was recently evidenced in the 1970 amendment to 15 U. S. C. § 80a-35 which imposed a standard of fiduciary duty on, inter alia, investment advisers and affiliated directors.

> ". . . whatever competition there has been in the industry has historically been for sales, and recently for performance, but never for lower advisory fees . . ." Hearings, Mutual Fund Legislation of 1969, Part 2 at pp. 855, 858. (Emphasis supplied.)

Accordingly, a decision which impairs the ability of mutual fund shareholders to enforce privately the antitrust and securities laws by derivative suits will immunize the mutual fund industry from the salutary proscriptions of the antitrust and securities laws.

B. The Decision of the First Circuit on the Director Demand Issue Conflicts With Decisions of This Court and With Decisions of Several Courts of Appeal.

As noted above, the First Circuit majority insisted on reviewing the merits of the case by drawing "a sharp distinction between a transaction completely undirected to a corporate purpose and one which, while perhaps vulnerable to criticism, is of a character that could be thought to serve the interests of the company." (App., p. A32.) It is clear, however, from this Court's decisions in Smith v. Sperling, 354 U. S. 91 (1957), and in Delaware & Hudson Co. v. Albany & Susquehanna R. R., 213 U. S. 435 (1909), that the good faith of the directors in approving of or acquiescing in an allegedly illegal transaction, an issue going to the merits, cannot be used to attack the sufficiency of petitioner's allegations.

Thus, in excusing a demand upon directors in Delaware & Hudson Co. v. Albany & Susquehanna R. R., this Court held that "the good faith of the directors need not be questioned" and that "The attitude of the directors need not be sinister. It may be sincere." 213 U. S. at 451; see also Smith v. Sperling, 354 U. S. at 96-97. Likewise, in Smith v. Sperling, this Court emphasized (354 U. S. at 95):

"The gist of the findings of the District Court is that since there was no fraud on the part of the directors in making the contracts but only an exercise of independent business judgment, the management was not antagonistic to the financial interests of the corporation. That is an issue that goes to the merits, not the question of jurisdiction. There will, of course, be antagonism between the stockholder and the management where the dominant officers and directors are guilty of fraud or misdeeds. But wrongdoing in that sense is not the sole measure of antagonism. There is antagonism whenever the management is aligned against the stockholder and defends a course of conduct which he attacks. The charge normally is cast in terms of fraud, breach of trust, or illegality." (Emphasis supplied.)

Indeed, in Smith v. Sperling, this Court held that the district court's finding that "management would not have been disqualified 'from faithfully doing their duty' as officers and directors but that 'such a demand would have been futile'" satisfied the requirements of Rule 23(b), the predecessor to Rule 23.1. 354 U. S. at 94 n. 2.

Significantly, in his concurring opinion, Chief Judge Coffin rejected the majority's distinction, which "ha[d] not been so articulated in almost a century of derivative suit jurisprudence" (App., p. A37), and stated (App., p. A39):

"I also note that the management fee contracts are not attacked as simply ultra vires or as the product of mere negligence or even of 'unsound' or 'erroneous business judgment'. They are alleged to be illegal under federal antitrust laws. If I were to calibrate a scale to measure the impact of varying improprieties, I would rate such an allegation fairly high. I find it > hard to imagine that a director, however unaffiliated, who had participated, or under these circumstances knowingly acquiesced, in a major transaction, albeit for a corporate purpose, would authorize a suit, effectively against himself, claiming that the transaction violated the federal antitrust laws. Even independent watchdogs cannot be thought ready to sign a confession of that magnitude."

In fact, the "sharp distinction" drawn by the First Circuit conflicts with decisions by Courts of Appeals in several circuits uniformly excusing a demand upon directors when it has been alleged—as petitioner had alleged and could have alleged even more specifically if necessary—that the allegedly illegal transactions were approved of or acquiesced in by a majority of a board of directors, irrespective of any inquiry into the good faith or sincerity of such majority. Liboff v. Wolfson, 437 F. 2d 121, 122 (5th Cir. 1971); Meltzer v. Atlantic Research Corp., 330 F. 2d 946, 947-948 (4th Cir. 1964) cert. denied 379 U. S. 841 (1964); DePinto v. Provident Security Life Ins. Co., 323 F. 2d 826, 830 (9th Cir. 1963) cert. denied 376 U. S. 950 (1964); Cathedral Estates, Inc. v. Taft Realty Corp., 228 F. 2d 85, 88 (2d Cir. 1955).

The fallacious nature of the First Circuit majority's attempt to evaluate, at the pleading stage, the propriety vel non of determining compensation by a formula is made manifest by its statement that "[a] court sitting in Boston can take judicial notice that testamentary and indenture trustees are commonly compensated on a formula basis." (App., p. A33). However, unlike the testamentary and indenture trustees commonly compensated on a formula basis, only investment advisers are permitted to increase their management fees simply by selling additional mutual fund shares. This singular fact permits investment advisers, unlike testamentary and indenture trustees, to increase their compensation even though sales of additional mutual fund shares add nothing to the value of the investments of mutual fund shareholders. As succinctly stated by former SEC chairman Budge:

> "It is important to bear in mind that a growth in fund assets resulting from net sales does not increase the value of the investor's share; it just increases the number of shares outstanding." Hearings, Mutual Fund Amendments of 1969, Part 1 at p. 235.

Moreover, petitioner has alleged much more than "mere approval of the corporate action, absent self-interest or other indication of bias." (App., pp. A31-A32). To the contrary, this is a case where petitioner has alleged that the very directors, who approved the illegal investment adviser contracts, have also participated in a continuing combination and conspiracy, one of the substantial terms of which was to refrain from competing for the business of investment advisers managing other mutual funds so long as such investment advisers did not compete for their business when their investment advisory contracts were up for renewal (App., pp. B8-B9). Likewise, the continuing approval by unaffiliated directors of allegedly illegal investment adviser contracts permitting investment advisers to charge and receive grossly excessive management fees can hardly be said to reflect an unbiased and open forum for petitioner's complaint. To the contrary, at the least it demonstrates the domination and control effectively exercised by the affiliated directors and investment advisers over the unaffiliated directors and the penchant of the latter to engage in business as usual.

The second reason for the First Circuit's decision[8] was its finding that petitioner had failed to allege that "the unaffiliated directors who would have voted on [petitioner's] demand in 1968, had he made one, were the same ones (and hence, assertedly, impervious to a demand) that composed the boards when the contracts in question were approved." (App., pp. A31 and A36-A37.)

Initially, it should be noted that any fair reading of petitioner's pleading reveals that petitioner alleged that the mutual funds as entities participated in the combination and conspiracy set forth with particularity in paragraphs 22 and 29 of the complaint (App., pp. B7-B9) and that all of the defendants, obviously including the mutual funds, acquiesced, encouraged, cooperated and assisted in the effectuation and maintenance of the price fixing and noncompetition as set forth in paragraph 30 of the complaint (App., p. B9). Significantly, the Court of Appeals' own recitation of petitioner's allegations confirms such a reading (App., pp. A26-A27).

The district court, however, concluded that, because of the rebuttable statutory presumption contained in 15 U. S. C. § 80a-2(a)(9) regarding the independence of unaffiliated directors, petitioner had not "shown adequate reason to excuse himself from making a demand on the boards of directors." (App., pp. A18-A19.) Furthermore, the district court held that petitioner had failed to comply with the strict Massachusetts rule regarding demand upon and approval by stockholders as a prerequisite to the maintenance of a derivative suit (App., pp. A9-A16). Accordingly, petitioner was left with no alternative but to appeal to the First Circuit. No amendment to his complaint could have overcome the district court's decision.

8. This was the only reason which Chief Judge Coffin agreed with in his concurring opinion (App., p. A36).

On appeal, the First Circuit rejected the district court's approach,[9] but agreed with its result. Holding that the word "particularity" in Rule 23.1 required precision in petitioner's pleading, the First Circuit held that petitioner's allegations regarding the complicity of the mutual funds were insufficiently particular.[10] In an effort to cure this alleged defect, petitioner filed an affidavit, with his petition for rehearing, demonstrating that, based on sworn statements filed by the four Kauffman funds with the SEC, the unaffiliated directors who would have voted on [petitioner's] demand, had he made one, were essentially the same ones that composed the boards not only when the contracts in question were approved but when they were renewed as well (App., pp. C1-C7).

Stating that there had been "ample time for [petitioner] to make its now proffered assertions," the First Circuit declined to accept the affidavit (other than for purposes of "identification") and refused to permit petitioner leave to amend his complaint[11] (App., p. A43). However, given the holding of the district court, the First Circuit's decision was the first time in three years that any court had held petitioner's pleading, in and of itself, deficient under Rule 23.1. Furthermore, defendants, not petitioner, had adopted the procedure of arguing their motions to dismiss seriatim and defendants, not petitioner, had delayed their Rule 23.1 motions until their third group of motions to dismiss.

In this context, it would be a manifest injustice to penalize petitioner for failing to request leave to amend his complaint at an earlier stage of these proceedings. Indeed, "[i]t is too late in the day and entirely contrary to the spirit of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure for decisions on the merits to be avoided on the basis of such mere technicalities. 'The Federal Rules reject the approach that pleading is a game of skill in which one misstep by counsel may be decisive to the outcome and accept the principle that the purpose of pleading is to facilitate a proper decision on the merits.'" Foman v. Davis, 371 U. S. 178, 181-182 (1962); see also Zenith Radio Corp. v. Hazeltine Research, Inc., 401 U. S. 321, 334-335 (1971) and Ballou v. General Electric Co., 393 F. 2d 398, 399-400 (1st Cir. 1968) ("In any event, it would have been necessary to give plaintiffs an opportunity to amend if this were merely a matter of deficient pleadings.") As this Court stated in Surowitz (383 U. S. at 373):

10. See pp. 9-10, supra.

> "The basic purpose of the Federal Rules is to administer justice through fair trials, not through summary dismissals as necessary as they may be on occasion . . . If rules of procedure work as they should in an honest and fair judicial system, they not only permit, but should as nearly as possible guarantee that bona fide complaints be carried to an adjudication on the merits. Rule 23(b), like the other civil rules, was written to further, not defeat, the ends of justice." (Emphasis supplied.)

In light of this Court's holdings in Foman and Surowitz, the First Circuit's narrow and technical construction of Rule 23.1 improperly bars petitioner from an adjudication on the merits even though his complaint has never been attacked for failing to state a cause of action in any of defendants' three groups of motions to dismiss.

The third and last reason advanced by the First Circuit majority was its refusal to "infer collective hostility to [petitioner's] claims by dwelling on the fact that his suit has met extended resistance" on the ground that such resistance was allegedly based on nonsubstantive grounds (App., p. A30). However, in Smith v. Sperling, a derivative suit based upon diversity jurisdiction [12] involving the question of alignment of parties, this Court considered the question of antagonism between a stockholder and the management of the corporation in which he owned stock. In words which apply with equal emphasis to the antagonism apparent where, as here, the directors have resisted the complaint for more than three years and have approved of and acquiesced in the contracts and course of conduct alleged to be illegal,[13] this Court stated (354 U. S. at 97):

> "Whenever the management refuses to take action to undo a business transaction or whenever, as in this case, it so solidly approves it that any demand to rescind would be futile, antagonism is evident. The cause of action, to be sure, is that of the corporation. But the corporation has become through its managers hostile and antagonistic to the enforcement of the claim." (Emphasis supplied.)

Thus, the distinction drawn by the First Circuit majority between substantive and nonsubstantive resistance is meaningless. The failure of the directors of the four Kauffman funds to pick up petitioner's cudgels in the preceding three years, wholly apart from their so-called nonsubstantive insistence on a demand, is plain proof that "the stockholder and those who manage the corporation are completely and irrevocably opposed on a matter of corporate practice and policy." Smith v. Sperling, 354 U. S. at 97.

C. The Decision of the District Court on the Shareholder Demand Issue, Which Was Not Reached by the First Circuit, Conflicts With Decisions of This Court and With Decisions of Several Courts of Appeal.

1. State Law or Policy Cannot Be Applied to Nullify a Federal Cause of Action Arising Under the Federal Antitrust Laws.

The decision of the district court has produced the astonishing result that a complaint stating a federal cause of action under the federal antitrust laws has been dismissed against the two Kauffman funds incorporated in Massachusetts, but not against the two Kauffman funds incorporated in New York, solely because of a failure to comply with a unique and restrictive state policy which requires not only a demand upon stockholders but also their approval as a prerequisite to the commencement of a derivative suit. If permitted to stand, the right of shareholders to commence derivative suits under the Sherman Act will have been nullified not by congressional enactment but by a restrictive state policy.[14]

This Court has repeatedly indicated that, in the private enforcement of the antitrust laws, state law and policy must be disregarded. Thus, in Sola Electric Co. v. Jefferson Electric Co., 317 U. S. 173, 176 (1942), this Court unanimously rejected a state common law rule under which a private antitrust litigant would have been estopped from challenging under the Sherman Act a licensing arrangement to which he had agreed, stating:

14. "It is clearly established that 15 U. S. C. A. § 15 gives federal courts exclusive jurisdiction over federal antitrust actions." Engelhardt v. Bell & Howell Co., 327 F. 2d 30, 35 (8th Cir. 1964) (emphasis supplied); Cream Top Creamery v. Dean Milk Co., 383 F. 2d 358, 363 (6th Cir. 1967); Banana Distributors, Inc. v. United Fruit Co., 269 F. 2d 790, 793 (2d Cir. 1959).

"It is familiar doctrine that the prohibition of a federal statute may not be set at naught, or its benefits denied, by state statutes or state common law rules. In such a case our decision is not controlled by Erie R. Co. v. Tompkins, 304 U. S. 64, 82 L. Ed. 1188, 58 S. Ct. 817, 114 ALR 1487. There we followed state law because it was the law to be applied in the federal courts. But the doctrine of that case is inapplicable to those areas of judicial decision within which the policy of law is so dominated by the sweep of federal statutes that legal relations which they affect must be deemed governed by federal law having its source in those statutes, rather than by local law. [Cases cited.] When a federal statute condemns an act as unlawful, the extent and nature of the legal consequences of the condemnation, though left by the statute to judicial determination, are nevertheless federal questions, the answers to which are to be derived from the statute and the federal policy which it has adopted. To the federal statute and policy, conflicting state law and policy must yield. [Constitution and cases cited.]" (Emphasis supplied.)

Likewise, in Perma Life Mufflers, Inc. v. International Parts Corp., a private antitrust action, this Court declared, "We have often indicated the inappropriateness of invoking broad common-law barriers to relief where a private suit serves important public purposes." 392 U. S. at 138-139.

The rationale of these cases is that private antitrust litigation should be encouraged since it serves the public interest by eliminating anticompetitive conduct and agreements. Because of the primacy of this public interest, this Court has held that the Sherman Act precludes application of state laws or policies that would impair or vitiate a private litigant's ability to sue thereunder. By superimposing the strict Massachusetts stockholder demand requirement herein, the district court has in effect nullified the vigorous uniform enforcement of the federal antitrust laws.

The incongruity of engrafting the unique and restrictive Massachusetts requirement on the Sherman Act is self-evident. Even the district court recognized stockholders cannot ratify antitrust violations. Rogers v. American Can Co., 305 F. 2d 297, 315 (3d Cir. 1962); Gottesman v. General Motors Corp., 268 F. 2d 194, 197 (2d Cir. 1959). (App., p. A13.) Yet, application of the strict Massachusetts rule, as delineated in S. Solomont & Sons Trust, Inc. v. New England Theatres Operating Corp., 326 Mass. 99, 111, 114, 93 N. E. 2d 241, 247, 249 (1950), would require petitioner to make a demand upon and secure the approval of a majority of the stockholders of the two Massachusetts funds prior to the commencement of any federal antitrust litigation. Significantly, under the absolute Massachusetts rule, a request for stockholder approval and their subsequent refusal is insufficient; actual approval must be secured in order to comply with the rule. 326 Mass. at 111, 114; 93 N. E. 2d at 247, 249. Thus, although federal doctrine prohibits ratification of antitrust violations by stockholders, petitioner's cause of action would survive only in limbo since the conflicting Massachusetts policy would require him to secure stockholder approval prior to commencing his action, an obviously futile and burdensome act given the tens of thousands of shareholders involved herein [15] and given petitioner's extremely limited access to management proxy statements.[16] Accordingly, it is clear that the conflicting Massachusetts rule must yield to the federal antitrust laws.

2. A Stockholder's Right to Sue Derivatively on a Federal Cause of Action Is a Federal Right, the Effectiveness of Which Cannot Be Varied by the Whims and Vagaries of State Law.

Defendants contended below that the right of a stockholder to assert derivatively his corporation's rights depends on the law of the state of incorporation for his corporation. Thus, it was argued, a state could abolish the right to sue derivatively for violations of federal law or, as in the case of Massachusetts, a state could so severely restrict such right as to render it meaningless. S. Solomont & Sons Trust, Inc. v. New England Theatres Operating Corp., supra; Pomerantz v. Clark, 101 F. Supp. 341 (D. Mass. 1951) (diversity case).

This contention, when pressed in a federal question case as contrasted to a diversity case, has been rejected by every Court of Appeals that has considered it. In McClure v. Borne Chemical Co., Inc., 292 F. 2d 824 (3d Cir. 1961) cert. denied 368 U. S. 939 (1961), the Third Circuit rejected arguments similar to those raised below by the two Massachusetts funds. There, the Court held that neither the Pennsylvania forum's security for costs statute nor the security for costs statute found in the corporation's state of incorporation (New Jersey) were applicable to a federally created right, jurisdiction of which was vested 16. Petitioner would be entitled to only a 100 word statement, Investment Company Act Rule 20a-1(a), 17 C. F. R. § 270.20a 1(a); Securities Exchange Act Rule 14a-8(b), 17 C. F. R. § 240.14a-8(b). "[A]ny contention that plaintiff could make full disclosure in a 100 word statement . . . and receive thoughtful and adequate consideration, would be unrealistic." Levitt v. Johnson, 334 F. 2d at 819 n.4.

exclusively in the federal courts. 292 F. 2d at 829-835. As the Third Circuit held in McClure (292 F. 2d at 830-831):

> "In the present case we are not dealing with congressional silence on limitations but silence on security for expenses. Unlike statutes of limitations, security statutes do not embody traditional principles of law which are universally accepted. There is sharp dispute as to their desirability and efficacy. Moreover, only a minority of our states have enacted such statutes. Under these circumstances a presumption that Congress intended that courts should imply a security requirement from a statute, granting an express or an implied private right of action seems unjustified. Congress cannot be presumed to have authorized the courts to engraft a unique and controversial limitation upon a statutory right through its silence on the subject of that limitation."

Similarly, Section 4 of the Clayton Act, 15 U. S. C. § 15, which expressly creates the private right of action under the Sherman Act herein, does not contain any language indicating a congressional intent to incorporate the absolute Massachusetts rule which, like security for costs statutes, is a "unique and controversial limitation" upon a stockholder's right to sue derivatively under the antitrust laws.[17]

Defendants' argument has also been considered and rejected by the Second Circuit. In Fielding v. Allen, 181 F. 2d 163 (2d Cir. 1950) cert. denied 340 U. S. 817 (1950), a plaintiff sued derivatively, alleging lack of compliance with a provision of the Interstate Commerce Act making it unlawful for a single company to control two or more carriers without Interstate Commerce Commission approval.

17. Petitioner has been unable to find another state which follows or applies a rule similar to the Massachusetts rule.

The question was whether the plaintiff was required to comply with a New York security for expenses requirement, a restriction similar to the strict Massachusetts stockholders' demand rule on a stockholder's right to sue on behalf of his corporation. The Court concluded that state law was inapplicable (181 F. 2d at 167-168):

> "If [the stockholder's] right to maintain this derivative action is one which he possesses only by virtue of state law, his suit may be subject to the condition which New York has imposed even though the corporate right is federal. This we need not decide, however, for we think that the stockholder's right to maintain a derivative action on a corporate right federal in nature is federally conferred . . ."
> "Consequently, we think that the right of a stockholder to sue on his corporation's federal cause of action is itself federal in nature and therefore not subject to special requirements for cognate actions under state law." (Emphasis supplied.)

It should be emphasized that the cause of action in the current case, like the cause of action in Fielding, arises under a federal statute designed to promote competition.

Similarly, in Drachman v. Harvey, 453 F. 2d 722 (2d Cir. 1971) rev'd on other grounds, 453 F. 2d 736 (2d Cir. 1972) (en banc), the Court of Appeals declared (453 F. 2d at 728, 730):

> "The starting point in our analysis must be that appellants' derivative right of action to vindicate a federally created corporate right is one which is conferred solely by federal law. The remedial incidents of this > federally created right must, of necessity, also be controlled by federal law, because the policy of uniformity within the federal system at least with respect to the issue at bar is paramount to any interests to be served by conformity with the variousness of state rules."

>
> "Congress scarcely would have intended such an incongruous result, given the comprehensive statutory remedial scheme of the Exchange Act passed for the protection of investors, nor would Congress have intended the creation of a broad remedial scheme, the effectiveness of which would be varied by the whims and vagaries of state law." (Footnotes omitted and emphasis supplied.)

To paraphrase the Second Circuit in Drachman, in enacting the Sherman Act, Congress scarcely could have intended the creation of a broad remedial scheme, the effectiveness of which could be varied by the whims and vagaries of a state law, such as the strict Massachusetts rule requiring demand upon and approval by shareholders as a precondition to the commencement of a derivative suit.

Finally, in Levitt v. Johnson, the First Circuit itself refused to apply the strict Massachusetts rule when it was proffered in the context of a case commenced under the Investment Company Act of 1940, stating (334 F. 2d at 819):

> "We do not see how it can be gainsaid that any substantial stiffening of the conditions precedent to the bringing of stockholders' suits above normal requirements would conflict with this broad declaration. The district court's reasoning that since the stockholder's > right is a derivative one his right to bring suit must be controlled by the local law of the state of incorporation in the absence of an explicit congressional direction to the contrary negates the intendment of the act and underestimates the role to be played by the federal courts in the implementation of national regulatory legislation." [Footnote omitted.]

Likewise, in the case at bar, the strict Massachusetts rule negates the congressional intention embraced by the Sherman and Clayton Acts and undermines the exclusive role to be played by the federal courts in the uniform implementation of the federal antitrust laws.

3. Federal Law Excuses Stockholder Demand Where, as Here, It Would Be Unreasonable to Require It.

The district court, at defendants' urging, partially relied on this Court's decision in United Copper Securities Co. v. Amalgamated Copper Co., 244 U. S. 261 (1917) in reaching its decision that stockholder demand was required herein. However, when read in its historical context, it is inescapably clear that this Court applied federal law in United Copper.

Rule 23.1 is a direct descendant of the rule enunciated in Hawes v. Oakland, 104 U. S. 450 (1882), which recognized, inter alia, that the requirement of demand upon shareholders is excused when "it [is] not reasonable to require it." 104 U. S. at 461 (emphasis supplied). The Hawes rule was promptly adopted as Equity Rule 94 (104 U. S. IX) and has been continued in effect ever since, with only minor revisions, as Equity Rule 27 in 1913 (226 U. S. 629, 656), the original Rule 23(b), and now as Rule 23.1. Thus, Rule 23.1 today expresses the federal policy that the requirement of demand upon shareholders is conditional, i.e., only "if necessary," and may be excused when "it [is] not reasonable to require it." Hawes v. Oakland, 104 U. S. at 461 (emphasis supplied).

The United Copper case was a derivative action brought by stockholders of United Copper Company alleging that certain individuals and corporations had, by conduct in violation of the Sherman Act, injured United Copper Company. Neither the directors of United Copper nor the company itself were alleged to have participated in the alleged violations. The complaint alleged that demand had been made upon the company to bring the action, but the company had refused to do so.

Although it concluded that a demand should have been made on the stockholders to bring the suit under the particular circumstances of that case, this Court expressly recognized the continuing vitality of the Hawes rule in United Copper (244 U. S. at 264):

> "In the instant case there is no allegation that the United Copper Company is in the control of the alleged wrongdoers, or that its directors stand in any relations to them, or that they have been guilty of any misconduct whatsoever . . . No application appears to have been made to the stockholders as a body, or indeed to any other stockholders individually; nor does it appear that there was no opportunity to make it, and no special facts are shown which render such application unnecessary." (Emphasis supplied.)

This Court did not even mention state laws, rules or decisions and did not even discuss the law of the state of incorporation of United Copper Company. On the contrary, in light of its decision in Hawes, the recodification of the Hawes rule as Equity Rule 27 just four years earlier in 1913, 226 U. S. at 656, and the then prevailing federal common law doctrine of Swift v. Tyson, 16 Pet. 1 (1842), it is clear beyond peradventure that this Court applied federal law in United Copper.

In essence, United Copper merely stands for the proposition that the Sherman Act does not modify the federal rule regarding the necessity or lack thereof for shareholder demand. Unlike the strict Massachusetts rule, however, the federal rule, as first enunciated in Hawes, as first codified in 1882, as recodified in 1913, as enunciated again in 1917 in United Copper and as presently codified in Rule 23.1, is a conditional rule which excuses stockholder demand where "it [is] not reasonable to require it," where the wrongdoers are in control of the company or where facts are shown which render it unnecessary. Hawes v. Oakland, 104 U. S. at 461; United Copper Securities Co. v. Amalgamated Copper Co., 244 U. S. at 264; Rule 23.1, Fed. R. Civ. P.

If the district court's decision were permitted to stand, it effectively would nullify the right of any shareholder of any Massachusetts corporation to commence a derivative action for violations of the Sherman Act. Given the exegesis of Rule 23.1, this Court's decisions in Sola Electric and Perma Life, the First Circuit's decision in Levitt, the Second Circuit's decisions in Fielding and Drachman and the Third Circuit's decision in McClure, such a vitiation of the uniform and vigorous enforcement of national antitrust policy cannot be countenanced by this Court.

CONCLUSION.

In Surowitz, this Court wrote that "Rule 23(b) [the predecessor to Rule 23.1] . . . was written to further, not defeat, the ends of justice." 383 U. S. at 373. If the First Circuit's decision is permitted to stand in the case at bar, Rule 23.1 will have been used to promote, rather than prevent, a manifest injustice.

For the foregoing reasons, it is respectfully submitted that this Court should grant the Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to review the judgment of the Court of Appeals for the First Circuit.

Respectfully submitted,

MDL—78.
(ALL CASES.)

IN RE
KMF ACTIONS

OPINION.

June 7, 1972.

PETTINE, J.

Important questions of law are raised by several motions to dismiss in this complex and far-reaching litigation.

Plaintiff, a shareholder in four mutual funds,[1] has sued sixty-five mutual funds; thirty-eight investment advisors managing these funds; thirty-seven directors, alleged to be affiliated with the advisors and to be self dealing; and the Investment Company Institute, the trade association representative for the mutual fund industry. The complaint

1. The Dreyfus Fund, Inc.; Fidelity Trend Fund, Inc.; Manhattan Fund, Inc.; and The Putnam Growth Fund. It is these four funds that are referred to later as "the Kauffman funds." The remaining fund defendants other than the Kauffman funds are referred to as the non-Kauffman fund defendants.

consists of three counts;[2] only Count I is pertinent here. Count I alleges that all defendants had agreed, combined and conspired to fix and adopt similar schedules of grossly excessive management fees and to refrain from competing for the business of mutual funds and the business of investment advisors in violation of federal antitrust laws.

A decision by the Third Circuit Court of Appeals, Kauffman v. Dreyfus Fund, Inc., 434 F. 2d 727 (3rd Cir. 1970), pruned down to one the original several capacities in which plaintiff sought to pursue this action. Plaintiff was allowed to maintain this action only in his capacity as a shareholder suing derivatively on behalf of the four mutual funds in which he owns shares. Kauffman v. Dreyfus Fund, Inc., 434 F. 2d at 738.

Count I of the action as to all defendants was transferred to this Court by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation for pre-trial proceedings.

Defendants have made various motions to dismiss. The four Kauffman fund defendants have moved under Rule 23.1, Fed. R. Civ. P., to dismiss for (1) failure of plaintiff to make demand on the directors of the Kauffman funds that they institute this action and (2) failure of plaintiff to fairly and adequately protect the interests of those he represents, or, alternatively, to strike the appearances of plaintiff's counsel. Two of the Kauffman fund defendants, the Putnam Growth Fund and Fidelity Trend Fund, move to dismiss under Rule 23.1, Fed. R. Civ. P., for failure of plaintiff to make demand on their shareholders to institute this action. The non-Kauffman fund defendants move to dismiss for failure to state a claim against them upon which relief may be granted. The motions will be discussed separately.

2. Count II alleges violations of the Investment Company Act of 1940, 15 U. S. C. § 80a-1 et seq.

Count III alleges violations of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, 15 U. S. C. § 78n, the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, 15 U. S. C. § 80b-6, and the Investment Company Act, supra.

1. Non-Kauffman Fund Defendants' Motion to Dismiss.

The non-Kauffman fund defendants (listed on Schedule A) have moved to dismiss the action against them on the ground that plaintiff has failed to state or has waived any claims upon which relief can be granted. The motion is made pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6), Rule 12(c), and Rule 56 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. The non-Kauffman fund defendants argue that they are not necessary parties to any relief properly sought on behalf of the Kauffman fund defendants.

Having been limited by the Third Circuit Court of Appeals to pursuing this suit as a derivative action, plaintiff has sued the non-Kauffman funds, their investment advisors and directors on behalf of the Kauffman funds. While plaintiff seeks monetary damages from other defendants, he seeks only injunctive relief against the non-Kauffman fund defendants. Such injunctive relief is sought "enjoining and restraining defendants from continuing to pay or receive grossly excessive management fees or fees calculated solely on the basis of the average net assets of any of their externally managed mutual funds." It is argued that injunctive relief is necessary against the funds to restrain "involuntary conduct forced upon them by the self-dealing directors and the investment advisors who have dominated and controlled them and their personnel."

This being the plaintiff's theory, the non-Kauffman fund defendants argue, then they are but mere pawns manipulated by others and injunctive relief is properly sought against the manipulators, not the pawns. The interests of the Kauffman funds, they argue, are not furthered by seeking injunctive relief against the victims, the non-Kauffman funds. The true interest being asserted by plaintiff in his attempt to seek injunctive relief against them, they argue, is in protecting them from their manipulators, not in protecting the Kauffman funds. Declining to avail themselves of plaintiff's magnanimous veil of protection which retains them in this lawsuit, they argue that plaintiff is foreclosed from attempting to protect the non-Kauffman funds' interests by the decision of the Third Circuit which limited plaintiff to suing derivatively only on behalf of those funds in which he held shares. Thus, they argue, it is inequitable to retain them as parties and the action as to them should be dismissed.

It is, of course, well within plaintiff's rights in an antitrust case to select his remedies to seek injunctive relief without seeking monetary damages. 15 U. S. C. § 26; see Hawaii v. Standard Oil Company of California, 40 U. S. L. W. 4246 (U. S. March 1, 1972).

Neither victims of fate nor innocent of their circumstances, these defendants argue disingenuously. Plaintiff's request for injunctive relief against them is not an overreaching attempt to protect the non-Kauffman funds but rather an attempt to insure the practical effect of any judgment in favor of the Kauffman funds. As plaintiff has argued, a competitive market would not necessarily be opened up in the mutual fund industry if the defendant advisors and directors ceased antitrust violations as to the Kauffman funds while the non-Kauffman funds continued to passively accept the fixing of management fees. Furthermore, investment advisors may be changed, see e.g. Rosenfeld v. Black, 445 F. 2d 1337 (2d Cir. 1971), as may directors, and it is not unreasonable to seek relief from the funds themselves to protect against dilution of the injunctive relief by substitution of new dramatis personae among the other defendants. Should it be proven that there is a pattern of failure on the part of the independent directors to insure that the bargaining of the advisory contracts is done at arms length and that such a pattern has led to the antitrust violations, injunctive relief against the funds would prod these directors. The effect of limited competition in the business of providing investment advisory services may be to damage the Kauffman funds.

Whether or not plaintiff has suffered actual injury, injunctive relief is available on a showing of significant threat of injury from an impending violation of the antitrust laws or from a continuing violation likely to recur. Zenith Corp. v. Hazeltine, 395 U. S. 100, 130 (1969).

Affidavits having been submitted to this Court in connection with this motion, the motion is treated as one for summary judgment pursuant to Rule 56. Rule 12(b)(6), Fed. R. Civ. P. In light of plaintiff's allegations that a conspiracy in restraint of trade exists, I am unable to find that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact. "[S]ummary procedures should be used sparingly in complex antitrust litigation where motive and intent play leading roles, the proof is largely in the hands of the alleged conspirators, and hostile witnesses thicken the plot." Poller v. Columbia Broadcasting System, 368 U. S. 464, 473, quoted in Norfolk Monument v. Woodlawn, 394 U. S. 700, 704 (1969). Nor am I able to say that no set of facts exist which would support a claim for the relief requested here.

The motion to dismiss under Rules 12(b)(6); 12(c); and 56 is denied.

2. Motion of Kauffman Fund Defendants to Dismiss or to Strike Appearances of Plaintiff's Counsel.

The four Kauffman fund defendants, that is, The Dreyfus Fund, Inc.; Fidelity Trend Fund, Inc.; Manhattan Fund, Inc.; and the Putnam Growth Fund, have moved to dismiss the complaint for failure of plaintiff to comply with the requirement of fair and adequate representation under Rule 23.1, Fed. R. Civ. P. They also move to strike the appearances of plaintiff's attorneys because of their "disabling conflict of interests."

Rule 23.1 provides in relevant part:

> "The derivative action may not be maintained if it appears that the plaintiff does not fairly and adequately represent the interests of the shareholders or members similarly situated in enforcing the right of the corporation or association."

Shareholders who bring derivative actions are, defendants argue, in the position of trustees for the corporation and thus have a fiduciary obligation to the corporation. In relinquishing his claim to damages from all of the funds, including the Kauffman funds, plaintiff has, they argue, breached his fiduciary duty to "maximize the chances of recovery of those whom he [has] undertaken to represent."

Plaintiff argues that these motions are foreclosed by the law of the case as established in the District Court of New Jersey and the Third Circuit Court of Appeals. Even if these motions are not foreclosed, plaintiff argues, they are without merit and premature.

The Law of the Case.

Plaintiff has argued that defendants were required to submit all motions attacking standing in the District Court for the District of New Jersey, that these motions should have been made then, that they were not made at that time and so have been waived. "Standing," like "jurisdiction," is a much encompassing concept. In the context of the history of this litigation, I find no waiver.

As to whether the law of the case bars defendants from raising this claim of conflict of interest, I find that it does not. The opinion of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals in Kauffman v. Dreyfus Fund, Inc., 434 F. 2d 727, is restricted to those issues certified to it by the District Court, see 51 F. R. D. 18. This particular claim of conflict of interest was not among the certified questions. For these reasons I turn to the Rule 23.1 issues.

Fair and Adequate Representation.

Plaintiff has fulfilled his duty of fair and adequate representation of the interests of similarly situated shareholders. Regardless of whether plaintiff has relinquished his claim for damages against defendant funds or in fact never asserted such claims, he is under no obligation to seek all available remedies at law and in equity.

Although the analogy to the law of torts is not entirely persuasive, it is instructive. There, a plaintiff is not obliged to sue all wrongdoers from the outset, and, in cases such as those involving abatable nuisances, a plaintiff may seek injunctive relief as a cause of action separate from an action for damages, see Lawlor v. National Screen Service Corporation, 349 U. S. 322, 327-28, n. 13 (1955).

It would be a perversion of the purpose of Rule 23.1 to read it, as defendants do, to require that all available remedies be sought by the plaintiff shareholder. Rule 23.1 does not impose upon the plaintiff shareholder the obligation to champion his company's cause against every and all wrongdoers. While the history of this clause of Rule 23.1 is scant and unenlightening, see Shulman v. Ritzenberg, 47 F. R. D. 202, 210-211 (D. D. C. 1969), it would appear that the Rule seeks to protect against collusive suits or situations where the plaintiff's interests are antagonistic to those of similarly situated shareholders, see 7 C. Wright and A. Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure, § 1765 (1972). There is no argument here of collusion or that the relief sought is detrimental to the interests of the shareholders, only that a further claim for relief in the form of damages should be made. The situation at bar is not one of plaintiff seeking a form of relief in itself detrimental to the best interests of other shareholders, see Maynard, Merel & Co. v. Carciopolo, 51 F. R. D. 273 (S. D. N. Y. 1970), or of plaintiff pursuing this action for ends extraneous to the complaint and antagonistic to the interests of other shareholders, see Nolen v. Shaw-Walker Company, 449 F. 2d 506 (6th Cir. 1971).

Contrary to defendants' contentions, it may be that plaintiff has decided that the interests of the shareholders would best be furthered by not pursuing a claim for damages against the defendant funds. It may be that, in the assessment of plaintiff's counsel, the effort to be expended in pursuing such a claim would either not be repaid by an award of damages, or would result in a nominal award. The enormous legal costs and counsel fees thus needlessly accumulated might well be paid out of the award fund and so reduce the amount of the actual award to the Kauffman funds. See Schectman v. Wolfson, 244 F. 2d 537 (2d Cir. 1957).

While the transposition of legal concepts should be approached cautiously, in accepting defendants' argument that a shareholder derivative plaintiff is a trustee with fiduciary obligations to the corporation, I would point out that a fiduciary does not usually have a duty to maximize returns, but rather a duty to engage in a course of prudent investment. 54 Am. Jur. Trusts § 414.

The framing of plaintiff's case to seek injunctive relief rather than damages against the defendant funds does not work a hardship on similarly situated shareholders sufficient to invoke dismissal under Rule 23.1. It is doubtful whether either the Kauffman funds or later shareholder derivative plaintiffs would be precluded from seeking damages against mutual fund defendants on the mere fact that here plaintiff seeks only injunctive relief by the doctrines of res judicata and collateral estoppel. See Lawlor v. National Screen Service Corporation, supra.

For these reasons I cannot accept defendants' contention that plaintiff's "relinquishment" of a damages claim illustrates sufficient conflict of interest on the part of plaintiff's counsel to warrant striking their appearances from the record. Defendants would have plaintiff in a "damned if he does and damned if he doesn't" position. The motion to dismiss is denied; the motion to strike the appearances of plaintiff's counsel is denied.

3. Motions of the Kauffman Fund Defendants to Dismiss for Failure to Make Demand on Directors and on Shareholders.

Failure to Make Demand on Shareholders.

Two of the Kauffman fund defendants, The Putnam Growth Fund (Putnam Growth) and Fidelity Trend Fund, Inc. (Fidelity Trend), move to dismiss on the ground that plaintiff has failed to make demand on their shareholders in accordance with Rule 23.1, Fed. R. Civ. P. Rule 23.1 provides that

> "the complaint shall also allege with particularity the efforts, if any, made by the plaintiff to obtain the action he desires . . . , if necessary, from the shareholders or members, and the reasons for his failure to obtain the action or for not making the effort."

Putnam Growth and Fidelity Trend argue that general federal law is silent and therefore the issue of whether demand on shareholders is "necessary" must be decided by reference to state law. The law of the state of incorporation, they argue, governs. Putnam Growth, a voluntary association, was organized in Massachusetts as a Massachusetts business trust; Fidelity Trend was incorporated in Massachusetts. Massachusetts follows a strict shareholder demand rule, waiving the requirement only when plaintiff can show that a majority of the voting stock is controlled by the alleged wrongdoers. S. Solomont & Sons Trust, Inc. v. New England Theatres Operating Corp., 326 Mass. 99, 114, 93 N. E. 2d 241, 249 (1950). Demand on the shareholders is required even when the shareholders lack power to ratify the wrong.

Massachusetts law governs this issue, they argue, even though a federal cause of action based on the federal antitrust laws is asserted. They rely on United Copper Securities Company v. Amalgamated Copper Company, 244 U. S. 261 (1917). United Copper involved a shareholders derivative action claiming that the company was damaged by conduct of others in violation of the Sherman Act. United Copper, decided before Erie R. R. v. Tompkins, 304 U. S. 64 (1938), sustained dismissal of the action:

> "The case involves, therefore, this single question: Whether a stockholder in a corporation which is alleged to have a cause of action in damages against others for conduct in violation of the Sherman Act may sue at law to recover such damages in the right of the corporation if, after request, it refuses to institute the suit itself? Insuperable obstacles to the maintenance of the action are presented both by the substantive law and by the law of procedure.
> Whether or not a corporation shall seek to enforce in the courts a cause of action for damages is, like other business questions, ordinarily a matter of internal management, and is left to the discretion of the directors, in the absence of instruction by vote of the stockholders. Courts interfere seldom to control such discretion intra vires the corporation, except where the directors are guilty of misconduct equivalent to a breach of trust, or where they stand in a dual relation which prevents an unprejudiced exercise of judgment; and, as a rule, only after application to the stockholders, unless it appears that there was no opportunity for such application, that such application would be futile (as where the wrongdoers control the corporation), or that the delay involved would defeat recovery. In the instant case there is no allegation that the United Copper Company is in the control of the alleged wrongdoers, or that its directors stand in any relations to them, or that they have been guilty of any misconduct whatsoever. Nor is there even an allegation that their action in refusing to bring such suit is unwise. No application appears to have been made to the stockholders as a body, or indeed to any other stockholders individually; nor does it appear that there was no opportunity to make it, and no special facts are shown which render such application unnecessary. For aught that appears, the course pursued by the directors has the approval of all the stockholders except the plaintiffs. The fact that the cause of action is based on the Sherman Law does not limit the discretion of the directors or the power of the body of stockholders; nor does it give to individual shareholders the right to interfere with the internal management of the corporation." 244 U. S. at 264.

Because the complaint fails to set forth efforts by plaintiff to apply to the shareholders, or reasons for not making such application, Putnam Growth and Fidelity Trend argue that the complaint should be dismissed as to them.

Plaintiff responds that the issue of demand on shareholders is to be decided as a matter of federal law; that the policies of the federal antitrust laws would be hindered or defeated by application of the state rule; and that, to the extent that United Copper dictates dismissal of this action, federal law has evolved beyond it. Plaintiff points to the incongruity of applying the Massachusetts rule to result in dismissal of the action against the two Massachusetts funds and not dismissing as to the other two Kauffman funds, which are New York funds, even though "plaintiff has stated an identical cause of action based upon identical facts under the federal antitrust laws over which federal courts have exclusive jurisdiction." Plaintiff also argues that these defendants have waived their right to make this motion. It does not appear to this Court that defendants have waived the right to make this motion.

Defendants have not argued that this Court must apply state law under compulsion of Erie R. R. v. Tompkins, 304 U. S. 64. It is, of course, true that the fact that this action is not brought as a diversity action does not necessarily dispose of the Erie problems. The Erie doctrine applies, whatever the ground for federal jurisdiction, to any issue or claim which has its source in state law. Maternally Yours v. Your Maternity Shop, 234 F. 2d 538, 540-41 n.1 (2d Cir. 1956). In constitutional terms, I think it is clear that Erie does not mandate application of state law here inasmuch as this issue is within the legislative competence of the Congress.[3] See Friendly, In Praise of Erie—And of the New Federal Common Law, 39 N. Y. U. L. Rev. 383.

Defendants have argued that this is like the question of the statute of limitations applicable to private antitrust actions, which the Supreme Court has held is "left to the local law by the silence of the Statutes of the United States." Chattanooga Foundry & Pipe Works v. Atlanta, 203 U. S. 390, 397 (1906). See also Leh v. General Petroleum Corporation, 330 F. 2d 288 (9th Cir. 1964). This view comports with the insight of Professors Hart and Wechsler

3. That the Congress is empowered to affect "the discretion of the directors" and "the power of the body of shareholders," see United Copper, supra, here follows from Levitt v. Johnson, 334 F. 2d 815 and J. I. Case Co. v. Borak, 377 U. S. 426 (1964).

that "[f]ederal law is generally interstitial in its nature."[4] Our problem, however, is specifically with the meaning and application of Rule 23.1, Fed. R. Civ. P.

Rule 23.1, Fed. R. Civ. P., requires demand upon shareholders "if necessary." One commentator has considered the meaning of "if necessary" to be:

> "This reservation is inserted since a demand upon the shareholders, unlike the demand upon the directors, is intertwined with the substantive law of corporations dealing with the power of shareholders to ratify 'fraud.'"
> J. Moore, 3B Federal Practice, paragraph 23.1.19.

While shareholders would seem to lack power to ratify away a violation of the antitrust laws, Rogers v. American Can Co., 187 F. Supp. 532 (D. N. J. 1960), aff'd 305 F. 2d 297 (3rd Cir. 1962), it is clear that under Massachusetts law demand must be made even when shareholders lack authority to ratify the alleged wrong. It has been held that a federal court sitting in diversity on a cause of action arising under state law must apply the strict Massachusetts rule. Pomerantz v. Clark, 101 F. Supp. 341, 345-46 (D.

4. "Federal law is generally interstitial in its nature. It rarely occupies a legal field completely, totally excluding all participation by the legal systems of the states. This was plainly true in the beginning when the federal legislative product (including the Constitution) was extremely small. It is significantly true today, despite the volume of Congressional enactments, and even within areas where Congress has been very active. Federal legislation, on the whole, has been conceived and drafted on an ad hoc basis to accomplish limited objectives. It builds upon legal relationships established by the states, altering or supplanting them only so far as necessary for the special purpose. Congress acts, in short, against the background of the total corpus juris of the states in much the way that a state legislature acts against the background of the common law, assumed to govern unless changed by legislation."

H. Hart and H. Wechsler, The Federal Courts and the Federal System 435 (1953).

Mass. 1951). Thus, it would appear that Rule 23.1, Fed. R. Civ. P. does not in and of itself establish as a rule of federal law that shareholder demand is not required for a non-ratifiable wrong.

As reasoned by Judge Wyzanski in Pomerantz v. Clark, supra, one purpose of the demand on shareholders requirement is to provide an opportunity for a majority of shareholders to bring derivative suit against the majority of the directors. This purpose was recognized in Halprin v. Babbitt, 303 F. 2d 138, 141 (1st Cir. 1962), as was the purpose of allowing the majority to decide to take no action at all.

The First Circuit Court of Appeals has reasoned:

> "Neither of the more limited purposes we outlined in Halprin could be accomplished in any real sense unless the demand evoked a full and fair consideration of the issues, in depth, by the other stockholders. If their number is small, as in Halprin, and the minority could reasonably be expected to put its case before them, it should be obliged to do so. However, on the allegations of the present complaint not only would such a burden be enormous, but no disclosure that plaintiff could be expected to make would be likely to persuade a majority to take over the action, or, conversely, permit an informed decision by the majority that the action be not instituted.
> As a pointless or, alternatively, impossibly burdensome act it should be excused."

Levitt v. Johnson, 334 F. 2d 815, 818 (1st Cir. 1964).

The same reasoning might apply here for two reasons. First, Fidelity Trend and Putnam Growth had, plaintiff alleges, 252,900 and 97,432 shareholders as of December 31, 1967. This exceeds the 48,000 in Levitt, which number the Court felt was too large to reasonably require demand on the shareholders. Second, the allegations of the complaint in Levitt were summarized as claims of charging of improper and excessive fees in a mutual fund, 334 F. 2d 815 at 817, as the complaint alleges here. The burden of disclosure sufficient to allow the majority of shareholders to make an informed decision is enormous here as in Levitt.

Levitt was a derivative suit on behalf of shareholders of a Massachusetts mutual fund alleging violations of the Investment Company Act of 1940, 15 U. S. C. §§ 80a-1 et seq. The alleged conduct in violation consisted of the charging of improper and excessive fees. Levitt held that in view of the national policy of securities regulation embodied in the Investment Company Act, the application of a strict shareholder demand rule which negated this policy was, as a matter of federal law, forbidden.

Levitt, might, then, be thought to argue for excuse of the shareholder demand requirement here. However, Levitt expressly distinguished cases involving alleged violations of the antitrust laws:

> "United Copper Securities v. Amalgamated Copper Co., supra, held that the fact that the cause of action was based upon an alleged violation of the Sherman Act did not obviate, or reduce, the necessity of a demand by the minority stockholders. This is a quite different situation. As the SEC points out in its amicus brief filed herein in opposition to the 'Massachusetts rule,' there is a 'great difference between the policy underlying the federal antitrust laws and that underlying the Investment Company Act. On the one hand, the policy of the antitrust laws is the preservation and protection of competition in our economy in its broadest scope. Those laws are thus geared to the protection of competing businesses, as businesses, whether in the > corporate form or not. On the other hand, the policy of the Investment Company Act is to provide a comprehensive network of restrictions upon the organization, operation and management of investment companies to the end that individual investors might be protected.' "

> 334 F. 2d at 820 n.5.

Bound to follow the mandate of the circuit court, I feel I must, on the basis of this footnote 5 in Levitt, grant the motion to dismiss.

Failure to Make Demand on Directors.

The four Kauffman fund defendants move to dismiss on the ground that the complaint does not set forth with particularity the efforts made by plaintiff to obtain the desired action from the Kauffman fund directors or the reasons for not making efforts. Rule 23.1, Fed. R. Civ. P. provides, in pertinent part:

> "The complaint shall also allege with particularity the efforts, if any, made by the plaintiff to obtain the actions he desires from the directors or comparable authority and, if necessary, from the shareholders or members, and the reasons for his failure to obtain the action or for not making the effort."

The allegations of the complaint relevant here are as follows:

> "10. Demand by plaintiff that defendant externally managed mutual funds or any other externally managed mutual funds affiliated therewith or related thereto bring this action would have been futile and, therefore, was not made.

"23. At all times material to the Complaint:

(a) the self-dealing and affiliated directors and their respective investment advisers have dominated and controlled their respective externally managed mutual funds and their personnel, policies and boards of directors; and

(b) the self dealing and affiliated directors have dominated and controlled their respective investment advisers and their personnel, policies and boards of directors.

"24. At all times material to the Complaint, the contracts and other forms of agreement between the defendant investment advisers and their respective externally managed mutual funds have not been either the subject or the result of arm's-length bargaining between them.

"25. Pursuant to said contracts and other forms of agreement, defendant investment advisers receive for their respective investment advisory and management services a fee calculated solely on the basis of their respective mutual funds' average net assets ('management fees')."

Kauffman defendants argue that the allegations of the complaint are insufficient, being mere empty conclusions. The lack of substance in such conclusions, they argue, is demonstrated, inter alia, by the fact that at the time of the complaint, federal law provided that at least 40% of the board of any investment company should be composed of independent directors. Investment Company Act of 1940, Section 10(a), 15 U. S. C. § 80a-10(a). Such independent directors, they argue, cannot as a matter of law be presumed to be "controlled," Investment Company Act of 1940, Section 2(a)(9), 15 U. S. C. § 80a-2(a)(9), and should have been allowed to consider a demand by plaintiff to take action. They also argue certain policy reasons for strict enforcement of the director demand requirement. See Note, Demand on Directors and Shareholders as a Prerequisite to a Derivative Suit, 73 Harv. L. Rev. 746 (1960).

Plaintiff answers that due to their posture in prior proceedings in this case, the Kauffman fund defendants have waived their right to make this motion and that, in any event, plaintiff, under federal law, has satisfied Rule 23.1.

Concluding that there has been no waiver, this Court looks to the substance of the Rule 23.1 claim.

This case presents the intersection of the rule that a complaint should not be dismissed "unless it appears beyond doubt that the plaintiff can prove no set of facts in support of his claim which would entitle him to relief," Conley v. Gibson, 355 U. S. 41, 45-46 (1957), with the requirements of Rule 23.1, Fed. R. Civ. P., that the complaint allege with particularity plaintiff's reasons for not making demand on directors.

Plaintiff has alleged that such demand would be futile because "the self-dealing and affiliated directors and their respective investment advisors have dominated and controlled their respective externally managed mutual funds and boards of directors." If Rule 23.1 is to be more than a nicety of pleading and is to safeguard corporations from abuse, see Note, Demand on Directors and Shareholders as a Prerequisite to a Derivative Suit, 73 Harv. L. Rev. 746 (1960), it must mandate that there be some merit to allegations of "futility" of demand. Plaintiff has not sufficiently shown the merits of his allegations of futility. Cf. Meltzer v. Atlantic Research Corp., 330 F. 2d 946 (4th Cir. 1964).

As defendants have argued by attested affidavits, the majority of each of the boards of directors of the Kauffman funds is composed of non-affiliated directors. The complaint does not charge these "independent" directors with specific misconduct, as it does the affiliated directors. It rather alleges that these non-affiliated directors are "controlled." In light of an express statutory presumption contained in the Investment Company Act of 1940, 15 U. S. C. § 80a-2(a)(9) that "[a] natural person shall be presumed not to be a controlled person within the meaning of this subchapter," I do not find that plaintiff has shown adequate reason to excuse himself from making demand on the boards of directors. This is not a case where the majority of the board of directors are the accused wrongdoers. While the utility of independent directors has been criticized, see e.g. Nutt, A Study of Mutual Fund Independent Directors, 120 U. Pa. L. Rev. 179, 184-185 (1971), I cannot assume that the non-affiliated directors of these particular funds have been lax in their duties or that appeal to the majority of the boards would be "futile."

The motion to dismiss of the four Kauffman funds for failure to make demand on directors is granted. Defendants shall prepare an order reflecting these rulings.

ORDER.

Pursuant to paragraph 14 of Pre-Trial Order No. 1, paragraphs 4, 5 and 6 of Pre-Trial Order No. 2 and the Court's Notice of Pre-Trial Conference scheduled for May 12, 1972, and issued by the Clerk of the Court under date of April 11, 1972, a second formal pre-trial conference was held in the above-captioned cause on May 12, 1972. As a result thereof, and this Court having received briefs in support and in opposition to the motions hereinafter described, and having heard the oral arguments of counsel thereon, for the reasons set forth in the Opinion of this Court, dated June 7, 1972, it is hereby

ORDERED that:

1. The motion of defendants The Dreyfus Fund, Inc., Fidelity Trend Fund, Inc., Manhattan Fund, Inc., The Putnam Growth Fund and those listed on Schedule A attached to such motion pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure to dismiss the complaint for failure to state a cause of action on the ground that the complaint does not allege with particularity the efforts made by plaintiff to obtain the action that he desires from their directors or comparable authority and the reasons for his failure to obtain such action or his failure to make such efforts, as required in derivative actions by a shareholder under Rule 23.1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, be and the same hereby is granted.

2. The motion of defendants Fidelity Trend Fund, Inc., The Putnam Growth Fund and those listed on Schedule A attached to such motion to dismiss the complaint as to them, on the ground that plaintiff has failed to state a cause of action inasmuch as the complaint does not allege with particularity in accordance with Rule 23.1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure plaintiff's efforts to obtain the action he desires from their shareholders, be and the same hereby is granted.

3. The motion filed by the Fund Coordinating Committee and defendants listed on Schedule A attached to such motion pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6), 12(c), and 56, of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure to dismiss the complaint, as modified by (a) the Opinion of the Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit (Kauffman v. The Dreyfus Fund, Inc., 434 F. 2d 727), and (b) the subsequent Orders of the United States District Court for the District of New Jersey on the ground that plaintiff has failed to state or has waived any claims upon which relief can be granted, be and the same hereby is denied.

4. The motion of defendants The Dreyfus Fund, Inc., Fidelity Trend Fund, Inc., Manhattan Fund, Inc. and The Putnam Growth Fund and those listed on Schedule A attached to such motion pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure:

A. To dismiss the complaint for failure by the plaintiff to comply with his duty under Rule 23.1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure fairly and adequately to represent the interests he purports to represent; and

B. To strike from the record the appearances of plaintiff's attorneys because of their disabling conflict of interests, be and the same hereby is denied.

5. The cause be and the same hereby is dismissed without prejudice as to all defendants and final judgment, be and the same hereby is entered in their favor; and the Clerk of this Court shall give prompt notice hereof by mailing copies of this Order and the Court's Opinion to the Clerk, Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation, and to the Clerks of each of the transferor District Courts herein.

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS

FOR THE FIRST CIRCUIT

No. 72-1288

IN RE KAUFFMAN MUTUAL FUND ACTIONS

JOSEPH B. KAUFFMAN,

Plaintiff-Appellant.

APPEAL FROM THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS

ALDRICH and MCENTEE, Circuit Judges.

May 14, 1973

ALDRICH, Senior Circuit Judge. This appeal challenges two rulings of the district court that plaintiff's derivative suit on behalf of certain mutual funds of which he is a shareholder is not maintainable because of failure to allege sufficient reason to excuse a prior demand on the directors, and, as to two funds, on the shareholders. F. R. Civ. P. Rule 23.1, post.[1] We reach only the first issue.

Plaintiff is a shareholder in four mutual funds, the Dreyfus Fund, Inc., Manhattan Fund, Inc., Fidelity Trend Fund, Inc., and the Putnam Growth Fund, the latter two being, respectively, a Massachusetts corporation and a Massachusetts business trust. In December, 1968 he filed this suit in the District of New Jersey in several capacities —not only as a shareholder of the above funds, but also, inter alia, as a representative of shareholders of other funds—alleging antitrust and Investment Company Act causes of action against many large mutual funds, their external investment advisers, directors affiliated with both funds and advisers, and the Investment Company Institute, the trade association for the mutual fund industry. The thrust of the antitrust claim, the only one relevant to this proceeding, is that defendant fund directors, who were also affiliated with investment advisers, conspired with funds, advisers, and others to set excessive noncompetitive management fee schedules based solely on the average net assets of the funds. In April, 1969 defense counsel submitted a list of fifteen preliminary motions, divided into three groups, the second group including a Rule 23.1 attack on plaintiff's failure to make a demand on directors and shareholders. The district court dealt with the first group, challenging plaintiff's capacity to sue, denied the motions, Kauffman v. Dreyfus Fund, Inc., D. N. J., 1969, 51 F. R. D. 18, but certified an interlocutory appeal. The Third Circuit held that plaintiff could only sue derivatively on behalf of the four funds in which he owned shares [the "Kauffman funds"]. 434 F. 2d 727, cert. denied 401 U. S. 974.

1. While we decided the merits in Moses v. Burgin, 1 Cir., 1971, 445 F. 2d 369, cert. denied sub nom. Johnson v. Moses, 404 U. S. 994, a suit involving a mutual fund, where no demand had been made, this issue was not there raised and we do not agree with plaintiff that our action was a sub silentio ruling on that issue.

Thereafter, when a second group of motions attacking jurisdiction, venue, and process, but not then including the Rule 23.1 motion, was pressed, the district court severed the antitrust claim (Count I) from the others, and divided it into ten separate actions to be tried in ten separate districts. In July, 1971 plaintiff applied for consolidation under 28 U. S. C. § 1407(a) and in January, 1972 the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation transferred some of the actions for consolidated pretrial proceedings to the District of Massachusetts. In re Kauffman Mutual Fund Actions, J. P. M. L. 1972, 337 F. Supp. 1337. After an informal pretrial conference the district court issued a pretrial order to govern future proceedings, setting a time schedule for disposing of motions and looking toward the establishment of a timetable for completing "first-wave" and "second-wave" discovery. Defendants then brought forward, (1) a Rule 23.1 motion to dismiss for failure of plaintiff to make a demand on directors of the Kauffman funds, (2) a Rule 23.1 motion to dismiss, on behalf of the two Massachusetts Kauffman funds, for failure of plaintiff to make a demand on stockholders; (3) a Rule 23.1 motion to dismiss because of plaintiff's inability to give fair representation, and (4) a motion by non-Kauffman funds to dismiss for failure to state or waiver of any claim upon which relief could be granted. The court, though denying the latter two motions, granted the first two and dismissed the complaint on July 7, 1972. This appeal followed; there being no cross-appeal.

Relative to the reasons for not making demand upon the directors, the complaint, the pertinent parts of which are summarized in the margin,[2] alleges the following: (1) a demand would have been futile; (2) the unlawful combination and conspiracy began at least as early as

10. [Demand would have been futile.]

22. [At all times directors of each fund have been affiliated with their investment advisers.]

23. [At all times (a) the affiliated directors and their investment advisers] "have dominated and controlled their respective . . . funds and their personnel, policies and boards of directors." (b) [the affiliated directors] "have dominated and controlled their respective investment advisers and their personnel, policies and boards of directors."

24. [At all times the contracts and fee agreements between the investment advisers and the funds] "have not been either the subject or the result of arm's-length bargaining between them."

25. [The management fees are] "calculated solely on the basis of . . . average net assets."

27. [. . . and are improperly measured and grossly excessive.]

28. "The combination and conspiracy involved in this action consisted and consist of a continuing agreement, understanding and concert of action, inter alia, between and among:

(a) each externally managed mutual fund and its respective investment adviser;

(b) each externally managed mutual fund and its self-dealing directors;

(c) each self-dealing director and his respective investment adviser;

(k) the members of the externally managed mutual funds, investment advisers, and self-dealing directors classes and the Institute.

29. "The substantial terms of the aforesaid combination and conspiracy were and are to:

(a) fix and adopt similar schedules of grossly excessive management fees unrelated to the services performed by investment advisers and the performance of the externally managed mutual funds;

(b) maintain and stabilize prices for the services performed by investment advisers by adherence to said similar schedules of management fees;

(c) refrain from competing for the business of externally managed mutual funds or the business of investment advisers.

30. "All of the defendants . . . have acquiesced, encouraged, cooperated and assisted in the effectuation and maintenance of the aforesaid combination and conspiracy."

January 1, 1965; (3) the fund directors who were affiliated with the external advisers dominated and controlled the personnel, policies, and boards of directors of the funds; (4) the contracts between the advisers and the funds "have not been either the subject or the result of arm's length bargaining"; (5) the fee for investment advisory and management services, being based solely on the average net assets of a fund, bore no relation to services performed or results and were grossly excessive; (6) the conspiracy involved the funds, their advisers, the "self-dealing" directors, the Investment Company Institute and others unknown, and was aimed at fixing and maintaining the grossly excessive management fees and refraining from competition; and (7) all of the defendants "acquiesced, encouraged, cooperated and assisted in the effectuation and maintenance" of the conspiracy. By uncontradicted affidavits submitted in the spring of 1972, it was established that a majority of the directors of each of the Kauffman funds were not "affiliated" directors within the meaning of section 2(a)(3) of the Investment Company Act of 1940, 15 U. S. C. § 80a-2(a)(3).[3] On the basis of these allegations and affidavits, the district court held that plaintiff had "not sufficiently shown the merits of his allegations of futility," noting the presumption in 15 U. S. C. § 80a-2(a)(9) that a natural person shall be presumed not to be controlled, and that it could not assume that the non-affiliated (majority) directors had been lax in their duties or that appeal to them

3. The affidavits spoke in terms of "affiliated" persons, since the Act at the time of suit required that at least 40% of a fund's directors not be "affiliated" with the fund's adviser. In 1970 the Act was amended to require that at least 40% of the directors not be "interested" persons, as defined in 15 U. S. C. § 80a-2(a)(19), a somewhat broader category.

The affidavits showed that five of nine trustees of the Putnam Growth Fund, five of the seven directors of Dreyfus, five of the eight directors of Fidelity, and three of the five directors of Manhattan were unaffiliated within the meaning of the Act. They reveal nothing more, except brief vocational information.

would be futile. While the court's reference at this stage to a presumption may have been erroneous,[4] we agree with the court's result.

For lawyers and judges accustomed to the liberalized "notice" pleading of the Federal Rules, F. R. Civ. P. 8, a brief review of the background of Rule 23.1 is in order. Rule 23.1 is not an ordinary, but an exceptional rule of pleading, serving a special purpose, and requiring a different judicial approach. Socially desirable as minority stockholders' actions may be thought to be, see Emerson and Latchman, Shareholder Democracy ch. VIII (1954); Pomerantz v. Clark, D. Mass., 1951, 101 F. Supp. 341, 346, it is normally the directors, not the stockholders, who conduct the affairs of the company. Hence, to be allowed, sua sponte, to place himself in charge without first affording the directors the opportunity to occupy their normal status, a stockholder must show that his case is exceptional. His initial burden is to demonstrate why the directors are incapable of doing their duty, or as the Court has put it, to show that "the antagonism between the directory and the corporate interest . . . be unmistakable." Delaware & Hudson Co. v. Albany & Susquehanna R. R., 1909, 213 U. S. 435, 447. This has long meant, as the Court stated in Hawes v. Oakland, 1881, 104 U. S. 450, cited in Delaware, that the "cause of failure [to induce corporate action] . . . should be stated with particularity." 104 U. S. at 461. See also Wathen v. Jackson Oil & Refining Co., 1915, 235 U. S. 635, 639-40.

Rule 23.1—"The complaint shall also allege with particularity . . . the reasons for . . . not making the [demand]"—is thus the embodiment of a long-standing principle, or, as the Massachusetts court said in a parallel case, Bartlett v. New York, N. H. & H. R. R., 1915, 221 Mass. 530, at 538, "It is not a technical rule of pleading, but one of substantive right." Whether the word "substantive" is exact, it is clear that the "particularity" must appear in the pleading itself; the stockholder may not plead in general terms, hoping that, by discovery or otherwise, he can later establish a case. Indeed, if the requirement could be met otherwise, it would be meaningless.

4. Although certain facts were presented by affidavit, n. 3, ante, basically the motion to dismiss tested the sufficiency, vel non, of the complaint. The presumption supplied by 15 U. S. C. § 80a-2(a)(9) that "[a] natural person shall be presumed not to be a controlled person," whatever may be its effect at a trial, could not be used to contradict the complaint, if plaintiff is correct that the court so employed it.

Returning to our listing of plaintiff's allegations, ante, we find that, (1) (demand would be futile) is merely a conclusion, not a reason; (2) (dates) does not purport to state a reason; (3) (domination and control) is, again, a statement of ultimate fact, not meeting the test of "particularity"; (4) and (5) are why, allegedly, the acts are wrongful; (6) advances nothing over (3), (4) and (5); (7) (all the named defendants conspired) insofar as it names individual director-defendants who are financially interested in the attacked transaction, fails to go far enough. We will group and discuss these allegations, to the extent that they purport to be reasons for not making a demand, somewhat differently.

1. An allegation of domination and control, unsupported by underlying facts, does not satisfy the requirement of particularity.

The complaint asserts that the directors affiliated with the management advisers "dominate and control" the directorates of the funds. It is conceded, however, that in each instance the self-interested, affiliated director-defendants constitute less than a majority of the membership of the board. Were there a majority, this is a particularity from which a conclusion of control might follow. Delaware, ante, at 443; Rogers v. American Can Co., 3 Cir., 1962, 305

F. 2d 297, 299. Without it, or some other factual support, see, e.g., Cathedral Estates v. Taft Realty Corp., 2 Cir., 1955, 228 F. 2d 85, (stock control of plaintiff's corporation by interested defendants), conclusory pleading is not enough. See Lucking v. Delano, 6 Cir., 1941, 117 F. 2d 159, 160; Robison v. Caster, 7 Cir., 1966, 356 F. 2d 924, 926-27; Dunphy v. Traveller Newspaper Assoc., 1888, 146 Mass. 495, 498; Bartlett v. New York, N. H. & H. R. R., ante, at 534-35. Plaintiff must allege specific facts demonstrating the unmistakable link between the unaffiliated majority and the affiliated and allegedly wrongdoing minority. Cf. Baffino v. Bradford, 1972, D. Minn., 57 F. R. D. 79.

In this circumstance plaintiff's brief seeks to infer collective hostility to his claims by dwelling on the fact that his suit has met extended resistance. Whatever might be the effect if the resistance were on substantive grounds, cf. DePinto v. Provident Security Life Ins. Co., 9 Cir., 1963, 323 F. 2d 826, cert. denied 376 U. S. 950, to attempt to capitalize on the circumstance that the corporations are seeking to dismiss because of plaintiff's failure to make demand is classic bootstrap. Domination is not established by insistence on the right to have plaintiff plead a valid basis for suit.

2. The fact that the named defendants participated is not enough to excuse demand upon the directorate.

Apart from "control," only the affiliated directors—a minority of each board—are alleged to have "acquiesced, encouraged, cooperated and assisted in the effectuation and maintenance" of the conspiracy. The unaffiliated directors are not named as defendants, or even as the ones who approved the acts complained of. Bartlett v. New York, N. H. & H. R. R., ante, at 536-37. If we were to rely on plaintiff's citation of Moses v. Burgin, n. 1., ante, for anything, it would be for the fact that unaffiliated directors do not necessarily know all that is going on, pointing up again Rule 23.1's requirement of particularity of allegation. The complaint alleges that the "funds" participated in the conspiracy, but does not specify in what manner. What is basically important, the complaint does not allege that those who were unaffiliated directors at the time of suit participated; viz., that the unaffiliated directors who would have voted on plaintiff's demand in 1968, had he made one, were the same ones (and hence, assertedly, impervious to a demand) that composed the boards when the contracts in question were approved.

There is no burden on the court to make such assumptions. Were we, in disregard of the rule, to add to the complaint, we could only wonder whether we were not making interpolations that plaintiff could not in good faith sustain. Plaintiff's explanation made in argument why he sued only the affiliated directors, whatever its value, cannot meet his burden of showing that as to the majority of the board at the time of suit demand would have been futile. Even were we mistaken with respect to our next point, on which, essentially, he grounds his claim of particularity, there are thus no sufficient allegations of futility relating to a majority of the board.

3. Approval by the directors of action alleged to be injurious to the corporation is not sufficient to excuse demand, except in circumstances not here alleged.

There is a further reason that, in the light of the extensive argumentation that has been made to us, we feel we should deal with. Even if we could assume that there had never been a change in the complement of the boards of directors, and that those who were the directors at the time of the suit had approved of the transactions presently attacked, it would not follow that mere prior participation would excuse making the demand. Where mere approval of the corporate action, absent self-interest or other indication of bias, is the sole basis for establishing the directors' "wrongdoing" and hence for excusing demand on them, plaintiff's suit should ordinarily be dismissed. In fact, only a single court, see ¶2 of n. 6, post, has held otherwise.

In this respect, the nature of the alleged misconduct must be considered. Logic suggests a sharp distinction between a transaction completely undirected to a corporate purpose and one which, while perhaps vulnerable to criticism, is of a character that could be thought to serve the interests of the company. If the transaction attacked was one solely for the benefit of minority, interested directors —taking out a sham loan, trading in worthless real estate— the approval of the other, nominally disinterested, directors is prima facie inexplicable. If a director goes along with a colleague in an act on its face advantageous only to that colleague and not to the corporation, this in itself is a circumstance, or particularity, supporting the claim that he is under that colleague's control. It may be assumed that he would remain so when the directorate votes on plaintiff's demand. See Meltzer v. Atlantic Research Corp., 4 Cir., 1964, 330 F. 2d 946, cert. denied sub nom. Sloan v. Meltzer, 379 U. S. 841. It does not follow, however, that a director who merely made an erroneous business judgment in connection with what was plainly a corporate act will "refuse to do [his] duty in behalf of the corporation if [he] were asked to do so." Bartlett v. New York, N. H. & H. R. R., ante at 536. Indeed, to excuse demand in these circumstances—majority of the board approval of an allegedly injurious corporate act—would lead to serious dilution of Rule 23.1.

A minority stockholder, unless his claim is worthless on its face, necessarily alleges some illegal transaction or conduct harmful to the corporation. If demand is to be excused merely because the directors participated, the same could be said with respect to those who had failed to oppose, or, indeed, who, as new directors, had merely neglected to take action against their predecessors. If by plaintiff's merely alleging error, the directors are to be presumed incapable of exercising sound business judgment, Rule 23.1 would become virtually meaningless—a stockholder would be entitled to try the case on the merits, (viz., to establish that the fees were excessive, or improperly arrived at, or in violation of the antitrust laws) to show that he had a right to bring it.[5]

The conduct alleged in the present case was not, vis-a-vis the individual funds, undirected to a legitimate corporate purpose. The selection of an adviser, and a decision to compensate him, is obvious corporate business for a mutual fund. There is no facial impropriety in determining payment by a formula. A court sitting in Boston can take judicial notice that testamentary and indenture trustees are commonly compensated on a formula basis. Selection of a particular formula, of course, may be improper, and the underlying business judgment may be sufficiently unsound to call for correction. But it does not follow that it is to be conclusively presumed in such a case that an unaffiliated, or disinterested director, if demand were made upon him, would be unable to exercise an independent judgment in considering what new course to take.[6] See Ash v. International Business Machines, Inc., 3 Cir., 1965, 353 F. 2d 491, cert. denied 384 U. S. 927.

5. We do not accept as contrary the case of Smith v. Sperling, 1957, 354 U. S. 91. The sole question there raised, commencing with a 30-page opinion of the district court, 177 F. Supp. 781, was whether the corporation, as an indispensable party, was to be realigned as party plaintiff for jurisdictional purposes when it was found by the district court, after taking testimony, not to be antagonistic to plaintiff's claim. It is true that the Supreme Court, in discussing plaintiff's failure to make a demand, relied on the allegation that all of the directors had approved the contracts complained of. However, it made no reference to the nature of the contracts, nor to the interest vel non of the directors. In addition, it noted that other reasons were asserted for failure to make demand.

Nor do we think that an exception is to be made in the case of unaffiliated directors of a mutual fund on the ground that since they are expected to be sensitive to misconduct of this variety they are automatically incapacitated from performing their duties—their approval or acquiescence making them "wrongdoers"—once a stockholder alleges a corporate injury stemming from the adviser-fund relationship. Apart from the fact that this, again, would enable a plaintiff to try his case on the merits in order to determine whether he had a right to bring it, it would be a misconception of the nature of unaffiliated directors. Normally self-dealing by any corporate directors is suspect. Con-

6. Plaintiff, following argument, has cited Jannes v. Microwave Communications, Inc., N. D. Ill., 1972, 57 F. R. D. 18, a Rule 10b-5 misrepresentation case (15 U. S. C. § 78j(b)). We do not find it helpful. In the first place the court, in finding the derivative complaint sufficient, said it applied "the usual standard of whether any set of facts can be shown which would prove futility," 57 F. R. D. at 21, citing a Fifth Circuit decision which, in turn, purported to rely, as does the present plaintiff elsewhere, on Conley v. Gibson, 1957, 355 U. S. 41. Conley, which dealt only with F. R. Civ. P. 8 "notice pleading," is no authority for such an interpretation for Rule 23.1. More important, the Jannes court said that even a strict standard showed "self interest" on the part of all the directors.

We cannot similarly distinguish the recent case of Papilsky v. Berndt, S. D. N. Y., 3/19/73, CCH Fed. Sec. L. R. ¶ 93,902. We do, however, note that the authorities cited do not, in fact, support the decision. Thus in Cathedral Estates v. Taft Realty Corp., 2 Cir., 1955, 228 F. 2d 85, the corporate conveyance was by a majority of the directors to a corporation completely controlled by them. In Dopp v. American Electronic Laboratories, Inc., S. D. N. Y., 1972, 55 F. R. D. 151, the complaint contained specific allegations beyond the conclusion that the directors had approved the transaction. And as to the case which the court regarded as most directly in point, Liboff v. Wolfson, 5 Cir., 1971, 437 F. 2d 121, in addition to the fact that we believe the Fifth Circuit confuses Rule 23.1 with notice pleading, the court specifically noted, at p. 122, that the "defendants-appellees conceded on oral argument that . . . a majority of the board . . . [met the description of 'ownership and control'] as to them."

gress recognized, however, that a certain type of self-dealing is endemic in a mutual fund, and must be permitted. In order to make sure that the directorate not be top-heavy, it provided for a minmum number of directors who would not be so interested. We do not believe it should follow from this that, as directors required to be disinterested in a particular transaction, they differ in their fiduciary obligations from disinterested directors in any other corporate venture. All disinterested directors must "act honestly and according to their best judgment for the interests of all." Corbus v. Alaska Treadwell Gold Mining Co., 1903, 187 U. S. 455, 463. When corporate action, or inaction, is subsequently challenged, their duty is not extinguished, but, rather, refocused. After a demand provides them with "full knowledge of the basis of the claim," Halprin v. Babbitt, 1 Cir., 1962, 303 F. 2d 138, 141, it is for the directors, who have "the advantage of familiarity with the enterprise, with those who have conducted it and with the record of success or failure" to decide on the appropriate corporate response. Pomerantz v. Clark, ante at 344. To the extent that they are "watchdogs" they should be given the opportunity, not deprived of it.

We recognize the social desirability of bona fide, well founded minority suits. We also recognize the tremendous waste involved in suits that are not well founded. We do not accept the dictum in deHaas v. Empire Petroleum Co., 10 Cir., 1970, 435 F. 2d 1223, at 1228, that "[c]ourts have generally been lenient in excusing demand" if it is to be applied to allegations as substantively deficient as the present. Such easy remarks overlook the requirement that the directors' "antagonism . . . be unmistakable." Delaware & Hudson Co. v. Albany R. R., ante. If, as plaintiff suggests, this frustrates his ability to prosecute a worthwhile suit, the answer is that he was not entitled to bring it.

No further question need be reached. In affirming we must, however, comment upon one phrase in the order of the district court granting the motion to dismiss, that it is "without prejudice." This must mean without prejudice as to the substantive cause of action. The dismissal is with prejudice on the issue of the obligation to make a demand on the directors with respect to that substantive complaint. The principle applies that "[a]lthough, where a judgment for the defendant is not on the merits, the plaintiff is not precluded from maintaining a new action on the same cause of action, he is precluded from relitigating the very question which was litigated in the prior action." Restatement of Judgments § 49, comment b, at 195 (1942). See Acree v. Air Line Pilots Assoc., 5 Cir., 1968, 390 F. 2d 199, 203, cert. denied 393 U. S. 852; Estevez v. Nabers, 5 Cir., 1955, 219 F. 2d 321, 324; IB Moore's Federal Practice ¶ .405[5]. Cf. Stoll v. Gottlieb, 1938, 305 U. S. 165, 171-72; Stuhl v. Tauro, 1 Cir., 1973, F. 2d .

Affirmed.

COFFIN, Chief Judge (concurring). I concur in the judgment of affirmance. While agreeing that unsupported allegations of domination of a majority by a minority are insufficient, I would, but for one defect, find such support in the allegations that the named defendants, which include the mutual funds (and necessarily their boards of directors), "acquiesced, encouraged, cooperated and assisted in the effectuation and maintenance" of the conspiracy to establish exorbitant basic fee agreements benefiting fund advisers (and thus affiliated directors) to the detriment of the funds and in violation of the antitrust laws. But I view as fatal the absence of an allegation or indication in the affidavits, to use the court's phrasing, "that the unaffiliated directors who would have voted on plaintiff's demand in 1968, had he made one, were the same ones (and hence, assertedly, impervious to a demand) that composed the boards when the contracts in question were approved." We cannot assume that new unaffiliated directors would be unwilling to reconsider the wisdom or legality of their predecessors' actions and, if appropriate, bring suit.

I would, however, not go so far as the court does in delineating "the sharp distinction", for purposes of excusing demand under Rule 23.1, between actions which "could be thought to serve the interests of the company" and those of a fraudulent or self-dealing nature. The distinction has not been so articulated in almost a century of derivative suit jurisprudence, although concededly most of the prominent cases have involved just such factual situations. Yet the language of a number of cases traces a wider compass.* Moreover, these are times when corporations are exceeding in size and impact even the giantism of the past, when new layers and dimensions of corporate obligation are being recognized, and when the importance of directorate oversight of the management technocracy is greater than ever. A higher degree of professionalism, sensitivity, and scrutiny may fairly be expected on the part of directors today than in a simpler era. I am therefore reluctant, by resort to formula, to set boundaries to the action or inaction of directors, beyond which demand on them shall always be required.

International Business Machines, Inc.*, 353 F. 2d 491, 493 (3d Cir. 1965) ("the stockholder shall allege . . . that the directors of the corporation are personally involved . . . in the alleged wrongdoing in a way calculated to impair their exercise of business judgment on behalf of the corporation"); Liboff v. Wolfson, 437 F. 2d 121, 122 (5th Cir. 1971) (the complaint, held to "fully meet the requirements of the rule", alleged "The majority of said directors, participated, approved of and acquiesced in said transaction"); Papilsky v. Berndt, CCH Fed. Sec. L. R. 93,615, 93,616 (S. D. N. Y. Mar. 19, 1973) (allegation that "the directors participated or acquiesced in the wrongs alleged" held sufficient).

Even if, however, such boundaries can be justified for corporate directors in general, on the supposition that they can reverse gears on a course previously undertaken once attention is refocused by an allegation that it constitutes a wrong to the corporation, the broad extension of "first refusals" to unaffiliated or independent directors of mutual funds would seem singularly inappropriate. For I believe, unlike the court, that the unaffiliated directors of mutual funds have a higher obligation of inquiry than directors of ordinary corporations, at least as to the type of transaction under assault here. As we said in Moses v. Burgin, 445 F. 2d 369, 376 (1st Cir. 1971), Congress intended that these board members act as "independent watchdog directors". The primary object of their surveillance is, patently, transactions between the funds and the investment advisers in which the other directors are personally interested. Their raison d'etre is acute scrutiny of the very contracts here attacked.

These contracts, additionally, are major corporate actions from any perspective. It thus seems reasonable to assume that the directors would be given advance notice of at least their final content and of the meeting at which they would be considered. Whatever the significance for excusing demand of mere knowing acquisecence in impending major corporate actions in other settings, see Liboff, supra, I believe that such passive acceptance by unaffiliated directors of the very transactions which justify their place on the directorate would be sufficient involvement or subservience to find them unlikely to respond meaningfully to a demand. Here, there are no allegations regarding the meetings and the actual votes on the challenged fees or the relevant corporate quorum rules. But whether one assumes that action by a majority of the total membership or merely a majority of those actually present is required, clearly some unaffiliated directors either voted for the contracts or failed to vote, in person or by proxy, or appear at the appropriate meeting. Under my view, this would be enough to excuse demand, had it been alleged that the unaffiliated membership was the same at both contract-making and demand time.

I also note that the management fee contracts are not attacked as simply ultra vires or as the product of mere negligence or even of "unsound" or "erroneous business judgment". They are alleged to be illegal under federal antitrust laws. If I were to calibrate a scale to measure the impact of varying improprieties. I would rate such an allegation fairy high. I find it hard to imagine that a director, however unaffiliated, who had participated, or under these circumstances knowingly acquiesced, in a major transaction, albeit for a corporate purpose, would authorize a suit, effectively against himself, claiming that the transaction violated the federal antitrust laws. Even independent watchdogs cannot be thought ready to sign a confession of that magnitude.

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS
FOR THE FIRST CIRCUIT.

No. 72-1288.

IN RE
KAUFFMAN MUTUAL FUND ACTIONS

JOSEPH B. KAUFFMAN,
Plaintiff-Appellant.

Before COFFIN, Chief Judge,
ALDRICH and MCENTEE, Circuit Judges.

MEMORANDUM AND ORDER ON PETITION FOR REHEARING.

Entered June 4, 1973.

ALDRICH, Senior Judge.

Plaintiff has filed a petition for rehearing. Insofar as it repeats points already articulated by the minority opinion, while avoiding discussion of the reasons given by the court, it is superfluous. It should be manifest that the court does not reach internal disagreements lightly.

Certain other contentions call for comment. We do not agree that the complaint's allegation of a continuing wrong can substitute for one detailing the length of individual service, and, hence, the opportunity for consideration by the unaffiliated directors. It is only necessary to read the finespun argument plaintiff presently attempts against his obligation to plead with particularity to see that plaintiff has not met the problems in his complaint that we pointed out in section two of the opinion. For clarity and simplicity of allegation in this area, see Papilsky v. Berndt, cited in n.6 thereof. Cf. Bartlett v. New York, N. H. & H. R. R., 1915, 221 Mass. 530, 537.

Alternatively, plaintiff has delivered to the clerk, and speaks of as "filed," an affidavit by which he would show that in fact the various directorates remained constant for several years prior to commencement of his action. Plaintiff cannot file documents enlarging the record without leave of court. We do not grant leave. Nor are we moved at this time to permit an amendment to the complaint. Surely plaintiff must have realized his obligation to show an excuse extending to the majority of the Board. Cathedral Estates v. Taft Realty Corp., 2 Cir., 1955, 228 F. 2d 85. Defendants' brief abundantly pointed out that the unaffiliated directors constituted the majority of each board, and there was ample time for plaintiff to make its now proffered assertion. This is particularly so as to a plaintiff who complains that the case has been vigorously defended for four years.[1] In addition, it seems unnecessary to note, the amendment would not overcome the hurdle posed by section three of the court's opinion.

Next, plaintiff asserts, inferentially, that we erred in distinguishing DePinto v. Provident Security Life Ins. Co. on the ground that defendants here did not defend on the merits. We observe, (1) any argument in this respect should have been made earlier, cf. Local Rule 15, particularly when we did no more than accept an argument fully articulated in defendants' brief; (2) plaintiff's present claim is based upon pleading allegedly filed by one of the four funds,[2] which is not in the record before us, and (3) we do not consider that the mere filing, along with a motion to dismiss, as permitted by the rules, of pleading addressed to the merits, effects a waiver of the failure to make a demand raised by the motion. In plaintiff's case of DePinto, if in fact correctly decided, the action was tried on the merits.

1. Plaintiff's citation of a case in which we recognized there would be a right to amend on a quite different set of facts does not mean that the right exists at all stages of a case or regardless of the type of pleading deficiency. Nor does Foman v. Davis, 1962, 371 U. S. 178, where the Court corrected our over-strict reading of F. R. Civ. P. 15(a).

Finally, passing plaintiff's repeated, but unjustified, claim that we have made a decision on the merits, we observe that it is late in the day for plaintiff, appealing from a dismissal for a failure to make demand, to discover that the proper order that we should now make is not to dismiss, but to retain jurisdiction pending a demand. For this he cites Laveson v. Trans World Airlines, 3 Cir., 1972, 471 F. 2d 76, a primary jurisdiction case involving quite different principles. Never having made this claim before, plaintiff strains our credulity by saying he "was previously unaware that the Court would . . . dismiss outright the complaint, rather than stay the action." While we express no view as to the success of a new action after demand is made, we deny the request to keep this action alive, in part because it raises a substantial question too late.

The Petition for rehearing is denied.

BY THE COURT:

/s/ DANA H. GALLUP,
Clerk.

---

2. The argument that all four funds sought to defend on the merits because they moved to dismiss for failure to state a claim is specious.

IN RE
KAUFFMAN MUTUAL FUND ACTIONS

JOSEPH B. KAUFFMAN,
Plaintiff-Appellant.

ORDER OF COURT.

Entered June 8, 1973.

Upon motion of appellant

It is ordered that mandate be, and the same hereby is, stayed pending the filing and disposition of a petition for writ of certiorari in the Supreme Court of the United States, the same to be filed by July 11, 1973, and notice of such filing to be filed promptly with the Clerk of this Court.

BY THE COURT:

COMPLAINT.

Count One.

1. This action is instituted under Section 16 of the Act of Congress of October 15, 1914, c. 323, 38 Stat. 737 (15 USC § 26) for equitable relief and under Section 4 of the Act of Congress of October 15, 1914, c. 323, 38 Stat. 731 (15 USC § 15) to recover treble damages and the costs of suit, including reasonable attorneys' fees, against the defendants for the injuries sustained by plaintiff and members of the class, represented by him and, derivatively, by defendant externally managed mutual funds and members of the class represented by them by reason of defendants' violations as hereinafter alleged of Sections 1 and 2 of the Act of Congress of July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 (15 USC §§ 1 and 2), commonly known as the Sherman Act.

A. Plaintiff and Plaintiff Classes.

2. Plaintiff Joseph B. Kauffman ("Kauffman") is an individual with his residence at 27 South Oakland Avenue, Ventnor City, New Jersey. Kauffman has been a shareholder of the following externally managed, open-end investment companies ("externally managed mutual funds"): defendant Fidelity Trend Fund, Inc. since November 23, 1965; defendant The Putnam Growth Fund since November 23, 1965; defendant The Dreyfus Fund Inc. since November 24, 1965; and defendant Manhattan Fund, Inc. since February 24, 1966. At present, Kauffman owns 413 shares of Fidelity Trend Fund, Inc. common stock, 476 shares of The Putnam Growth Fund common stock, 826 shares of The Dreyfus Fund Inc. common stock and 51 shares of Manhattan Fund, Inc., common stock.

3. Plaintiff is representative of a class as defined by Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and brings this action on behalf of himself and the entire class.

4. Plaintiff also brings this action derivatively on behalf of defendant externally managed mutual funds and, in his capacity as representative, derivatively on behalf of all other externally managed mutual funds affiliated therewith or related thereto.

5. (a) The representative class consists of all shareholders of the common stock of defendant externally managed mutual funds and all other shareholders of externally managed mutual funds affiliated therewith or related thereto.

(b) The derivative class consists of defendant externally managed mutual funds and all other externally managed mutual funds affiliated therewith or related thereto.

6. Each class is so numerous and geographically so widely distributed that joinder of all members is impracticable. There are questions of law and fact common to each class. The claims of the representative and derivative plaintiff are typical of the claims of each class and plaintiff will fairly and adequately protect the interests of each class.

7. The prosecution of separate actions by individual members of each class would create the risk of:

(a) inconsistent or varying adjudications in different jurisdictions with respect to individual members of each class which would establish incompatible standards of conduct for the parties opposing each class; and

(b) adjudications with respect to individual members of each class which would as a practical matter

be dispositive of the interests of the other members not parties to the adjudications or substantially impair or impede their ability to protect their interests.

8. The questions of law and fact common to the members of each class predominate over any questions affecting only individual members and each class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the controversy.

9. The derivative action is not a collusive one to confer jurisdiction on a Court of the United States which it would not have otherwise.

10. Demand by plaintiff that defendant externally managed mutual funds or any other externally managed mutual funds affiliated therewith or related thereto bring this action would have been futile and, therefore, was not made.

B. Defendants and Defendant Classes.

11. (a) The following defendants are externally managed mutual funds (corporations unless otherwise indicated), each of which is sued individually, as a co-conspirator, as a member of defendant Investment Company Institute, as an externally managed mutual fund and as a representative on behalf of all other externally managed mutual funds affiliated therewith or related thereto with their principal places of business, as indicated:

[65 Mutual Fund Defendants Listed]

(b) The following defendants are investment advisers of defendant externally managed mutual funds ("investment advisers") (corporations unless otherwise indicated), each of which is sued individually, as a co-conspirator, as an investment adviser and as a representative on behalf of all other investment advisers affiliated therewith or related thereto, with their principal places of business, as indicated:

[38 Investment Adviser Defendants Listed]

(c) The following defendants are directors or trustees of defendant externally managed mutual funds and directors or partners of defendant investment advisers ("self-dealing directors"), each of whom is sued individually, as a co-conspirator, as a self-dealing director and as a representative of all other self-dealing directors similarly situated. Set forth below the names of the self-dealing directors are defendant externally managed mutual funds and defendant investment advisers with which they are affiliated.

[37 Affiliated Director Defendants Listed]

(d) Defendant Investment Company Institute ("Institute") is an unincorporated association with its principal place of business at 61 Broadway, New York, New York. It is sued individually, as a co-conspirator; and as the trade association representative for defendant externally managed mutual funds and defendant investment advisers.

12. Each of the representative defendants [¶¶ 12(a), (b) and (c) supra] is representative of a class as defined by Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and this action is brought against each of them and each entire class of which they are representative.

13. (a) The externally managed mutual funds class consists of the defendant externally managed mutual funds and all other externally managed mutual funds affiliated therewith or related thereto.

(b) The investment advisers class consists of the defendant investment advisers and all other investment advisers affiliated therewith or related thereto.

(c) The self-dealing directors class consists of:

(i) the self-dealing directors;

(ii) all other individuals who contemporaneously are directors or trustees of the defendant externally managed mutual funds and directors or partners of defendant investment advisers; and

(iii) all other individuals who contemporaneously are directors or trustees of externally managed mutual funds affiliated with or related to defendant externally managed mutual funds and directors or partners of investment advisers affiliated with or related to defendant investment advisers.

14. Each class is so numerous and geographically so widely distributed that joinder of all members is impracticable. There are questions of law and fact common to each class. The defenses of each class of representative defendants will be typical of the defenses of each class and each class of representative defendants will fairly and adequately protect the interests of that class.

15. The prosecution of separate actions against individual members of each class would create the risk of:

(a) inconsistent or varying adjudications in different jurisdictions with respect to individual members of each class; and

(b) adjudications with respect to individual members of each class which would as a practical matter be dispositive of the interests of the other members not parties to the adjudications or substantially impair or impede their ability to protect their interests.

16. The defendants and each of their respective classes have acted or refused to act on grounds generally applicable to plaintiff and the members of his class and, derivatively, to defendant externally managed mutual funds and the members of their class, thereby making appropriate final injunctive relief against defendants and each of their respective classes in favor of plaintiff and the members of his class as a whole and, derivatively, in favor of the defendant externally managed mutual funds and the members of their class a whole.

17. The questions of law and fact common to the members of each class predominate over any questions affecting only individual members and each class action is superior to other available methods for a fair and efficient adjudication of the controversy.

18. As used herein, "defendant" includes each of the above-named defendants and any predecessors in interest thereto.

C. Facts Conferring Jurisdiction on This Court.

19. (a) Each defendant is an inhabitant of or is found in or transacts business in the District of New Jersey.

(b) The claim hereinafter alleged arose in the District of New Jersey.

(c) Jurisdiction is also based on the jurisdiction of this Court obtained under the other Counts of this Complaint.

D. Facts Constituting the Cause of Action.

20. Each defendant herein is and at all times material to the Complaint has been engaged in the sale, redemption or management of externally managed mutual funds or mutual fund shares in interstate trade and commerce to customers throughout the United States.

21. Beginning at least as early as January 1, 1965, the exact date being unknown to plaintiff, and continuing to the present as hereinafter alleged, all of the defendants and each of their respective classes engaged in an unlawful combination and conspiracy in unreasonable restraint of the aforesaid interstate trade and commerce in the sale, redemption or management of externally managed mutual funds or mutual fund shares in violation of Sections 1 and 2 of the Sherman Act (15 USC §§ 1 and 2).

22. At all times material to the Complaint, directors or trustees of each of defendant externally managed mutual funds have been affiliated with their respective investment advisers within the meaning of the Investment Company Act of 1940, 15 USC §§ 80a-1 et seq.

23. At all times material to the Complaint:

(a) the self-dealing and affiliated directors and their respective investment advisers have dominated and controlled their respective externally managed mutual funds and their personnel, policies and boards of directors; and

(b) the self-dealing and affiliated directors have dominated and controlled their respective investment advisers and their personnel, policies and boards of directors.

24. At all times material to the Complaint, the contracts and other forms of agreement between the defendant investment advisers and their respective externally managed mutual funds have not been either the subject or the result of arm's-length bargaining between them.

25. Pursuant to said contracts and other forms of agreement, defendant investment advisers receive for their respective investment advisory and management services a fee calculated solely on the basis of their respective mutual funds' average net assets ("management fees").

26. For fiscal years ended on or nearest to December 31, 1967, the defendant investment advisers received management fees from their defendant externally managed mutual funds, the exact figures being presently unknown to plaintiff, in the aggregate substantially in excess of $90 million dollars. The members of the defendant investment advisers class received additional management fees from externally managed mutual funds affiliated with or related to defendant externally managed mutual funds for the same periods.

27. Said management fees are not related, nor have they been related, either to the services performed by defendant investment advisers or to the performance of their externally managed mutual funds, and are grossly excessive.

28. The combination and conspiracy involved in this action consisted and consist of a continuing agreement, understanding and concert of action, inter alia, between and among:

(a) each externally managed mutual fund and its respective investment adviser;

(b) each externally managed mutual fund and its self-dealing directors;

(c) each self-dealing director and his respective investment adviser;

(d) the self-dealing directors;

(e) the members of the externally managed mutual funds class;

(f) the members of the investment advisers class;

(g) the self-dealing directors class;

(h) each member of the externally managed mutual funds class and the Institute;

(i) each member of the investment advisers class and the Institute;

(j) each member of the self-dealing directors class and the Institute; and

(k) the members of the externally managed mutual funds, investment advisers and self-dealing directors classes and the Institute.

29. The substantial terms of the aforesaid combination and conspiracy were and are to:

(a) fix and adopt similar schedules of grossly excessive management fees unrelated to the services performed by investment advisers and the performance of the externally managed mutual funds;

(b) maintain and stabilize prices for the services performed by investment advisers by adherence to said similar schedules of management fees;

(c) refrain from competing for the business of externally managed mutual funds or the business of investment advisers;

(d) refrain from causing externally managed mutual funds from providing for investment advisory or management services internally; and

(e) otherwise to fix prices in, monopolize, and attempt to monopolize, the management market.

30. All of the defendants and each of their respective classes have acquiesced, encouraged, cooperated and assisted in the effectuation and maintenance of the aforesaid combination and conspiracy.

31. Various other corporations, individuals and entities who are neither defendants nor members of defendant classes herein, their identity being presently unknown to plaintiff, participated and are participating as co-conspirators in the aforesaid combination and conspiracy and performed acts in furtherance thereof.

32. By reason of the aforesaid combination and conspiracy, plaintiff and each member of his class and defendant externally managed mutual funds and each member of their class have paid substantially more for investment advisory and management services than they would have paid had the aforesaid combination and conspiracy not existed and will continue to do so unless defendants are enjoined as prayed herein.

33. As a result of the aforesaid combination and conspiracy, plaintiff and each member of his class and defendant externally managed mutual funds and each member of their class have been substantially injured and damaged by defendants in an amount which is presently undetermined.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff demands:

1. (a) Judgment in his favor and in favor of each member of the class represented by him in threefold the amount of the damages determined to have been sustained, together with the costs of suit, including reasonable attorneys' fees;

(b) Derivatively, judgment in favor of defendant externally managed mutual funds and in favor of each member of the class represented by them in threefold the amount of the damages determined to have been sustained, together with the costs of suit, including reasonable attorneys' fees; and

2. Final injunctive relief enjoining and restraining defendants from continuing to pay or receive grossly excessive management fees or fees calculated solely on the basis of the average net assets of any of their externally managed mutual funds; and

3. Such other and further relief as may be necessary and appropriate.

AFFIDAVIT OF APPELLANT'S COUNSEL.

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA
COUNTY OF PHILADELPHIA } ss.:

DAVID H. PITTINSKY, being duly sworn according to law, deposes and says:

1. I am one of the attorneys representing appellant on this appeal.

2. I am authorized to and do take this affidavit for and on behalf of appellant.

3. I am a member of the bar of this Court.

4. The facts set forth in this affidavit are true and correct to the best of my knowledge, information and belief.

A. The Putnam Growth Fund.

5. In the affidavit of Richard M. Cutler (A. 278a-281a), it is stated that, as of December 18, 1968, the following were unaffiliated and affiliated trustees of The Putnam Growth Fund, one of the four Kauffman funds:

Unaffiliated	Affiliated
Vannevar Bush	Charles Devens
Robert H. Gardiner	William M. Hunt
Louis J. Hunter	George Putnam
Donald J. Hurley	Charles M. Werly
Howard W. Johnson

6. My examination of the N-1R sworn statements filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") by The Putnam Growth Fund for the years ended October 31, 1965, October 31, 1966, October 31, 1967 and October 31, 1968 reveals that:

Unaffiliated Trustees.

(a) Vannevar Bush had been an unaffiliated trustee since at least November 1, 1964.

(b) Robert H. Gardiner had been an unaffiliated trustee since January 12, 1965.

(c) Louis J. Hunter had been an unaffiliated trustee since at least November 1, 1964.

(d) Donald J. Hurley had been an unaffiliated trustee since at least November 1, 1964.

(e) Howard W. Johnson had been an unaffiliated trustee since at least November 1, 1964.

(f) Stanley F. Teele was an unaffiliated trustee from January 12, 1965 to May 29, 1967.

Affiliated Trustees.

(g) Charles Devens had been an affiliated trustee since January 12, 1965.

(h) William M. Hunt had been an affiliated trustee since at least November 1, 1964.

(i) George Putnam had been an affiliated trustee since at least November 1, 1964.

(j) Charles M. Werly had been an affiliated trustee since at least November 1, 1964.

(k) A. Theodore Lyman, Jr. was an affiliated trustee from January 12, 1965 to June 22, 1967.

7. My examination of the aforesaid N-1R sworn statements filed with the SEC by The Putnam Growth Fund reveals that on January 4, 1965, October 18, 1965, April 18, 1966, September 19, 1966, April 17, 1967, October 16, 1967, May 20, 1968 and October 21, 1968, all of the unaffiliated trustees approved the investment adviser contracts in question.

8. Accordingly, the unaffiliated directors of The Putnam Growth Fund who would have voted on plaintiff's demand on December 18, 1968, had he made one, were, with one limited exception (Stanley F. Teele), precisely the same ones that composed the boards when the investment adviser contracts in question were approved.

B. Fidelity Trend Fund, Inc.

9. In the affidavit of Caleb Loring, Jr. (A. 284a-285a), it is stated that, as of December 18, 1968, the following were unaffiliated and affiliated directors of Fidelity Trend Fund, Inc., one of the four Kauffman funds:

Unaffiliated	Affiliated
C. Rodgers Burgin	Edward C. Johnson 2d
George R. Harding	Edward C. Johnson 3d
Gilbert H. Hood, Jr.	D. George Sullivan
George K. McKenzie
Horace Schermerhorn

10. My examination of the N-1R sworn statements filed with the SEC by Fidelity Trend Fund, Inc. for the years ended December 31, 1965, December 31, 1966, December 31, 1967 and December 31, 1968 reveals that:

Unaffiliated Directors.

(a) C. Rodgers Burgin had been an unaffiliated director since June 2, 1965.

(b) George R. Harding had been an unaffiliated director since at least January 1, 1965.

(c) Gilbert H. Hood, Jr. had been an unaffiliated director since April 26, 1967.

(d) George K. McKenzie had been an unaffiliated director since at least January 1, 1965.

(e) Horace Schermerhorn had been an unaffiliated director since at least January 1, 1965.

(f) Ronald Jones was an unaffiliated director from at least January 1, 1965 to October 31, 1967.

Affiliated Directors.

(g) Edward C. Johnson 2d had been an affiliated director since at least January 1, 1965.

(h) Edward C. Johnson 3d had been an affiliated director since April 24, 1968.

(i) D. George Sullivan had been an affiliated director since April 24, 1968.

11. My examination of the aforesaid N-1R sworn statements filed with the SEC by Fidelity Trend Fund, Inc. reveals that on December 2, 1965, December 1, 1966, January 3, 1967 and December 3, 1968 all of the unaffiliated directors approved the investment adviser contracts in question.

12. Accordingly, the unaffiliated directors of Fidelity Trend Fund, Inc. who would have voted on plaintiff's demand on December 18, 1968, had he made one, were, with one limited exception (Ronald Jones), precisely the same ones that composed the boards when the investment adviser contracts in question were approved.

C. Manhattan Fund, Inc.

13. In the affidavit of James H. Ellis (A. 286a-287a), it is stated that, as of December 18, 1968, the following were unaffiliated and affiliated directors of Manhattan Fund, Inc., one of the four Kauffman funds:

Unaffiliated	Affiliated
John S. Fielden	Gerald Tsai, Jr.
Robert W. Purcell	Joseph Auerbach
Laurence A. Tisch

14. My examination of the N-1R sworn statements filed with the SEC by Manhattan Fund, Inc. for the years ended December 31, 1966, December 31, 1967 and December 31, 1968 reveals that:

Unaffiliated Directors.

(a) John S. Fielden had been an unaffiliated director since January 1, 1966.

(b) Robert W. Purcell had been an unaffiliated director since January 13, 1966.

(c) Laurence A. Tisch had been an unaffiliated director since January 1, 1966.

Affiliated Directors.

(d) Gerald Tsai, Jr. had been an affiliated director since January 1, 1966.

(e) Joseph Auerbach had been an affiliated director since January 1, 1966.

15. My examination of the aforesaid N-1R sworn statements filed with the SEC by Manhattan Fund, Inc. reveals that during each of the years 1966, 1967 and 1968, the unaffiliated directors submitted to the fund shareholders with their approval the investment adviser contracts in question.

16. Accordingly, the unaffiliated directors of Manhattan Fund, Inc. who would have voted on plaintiff's demand on December 18, 1968, had he made one, were, without any exception, precisely the same ones that composed the boards when the investment adviser contracts in question were approved.

D. The Dreyfus Fund, Inc.

17. In the affidavit of Lawrence M. Greene (A. 282a-283a), it is stated that, as of December 18, 1968, the following were unaffiliated and affiliated directors of The Dreyfus Fund, Inc., one of the four Kauffman funds:

Unaffiliated	Affiliated
Lester R. Bachner	Jack J. Dreyfus, Jr.
Herbert M. Diamond	Howard Stein
Harold A. Weissman
Robert B. Woodward
William P. Rogers

18. My examination of the N-1R sworn statements filed with the SEC by The Dreyfus Fund, Inc. for the years ended December 31, 1967 and December 31, 1968 and the prospectuses filed with the SEC by The Dreyfus Fund, Inc. on February 26, 1965 and May 26, 1966 reveals that:

Unaffiliated Directors.

(a) Lester R. Bachner had been an unaffiliated director since approximately January 1, 1965.

(b) Herbert M. Diamond had been an unaffiliated director since approximately January 1, 1965.

(c) Harold A. Weissman had been an unaffiliated director since approximately January 1, 1965.

(d) Robert B. Woodward had been an unaffiliated director since approximately January 1, 1966.

(e) William P. Rogers had been an unaffiliated director since approximately January 1, 1965.

(f) Howard B. Keppel was an unaffiliated director during the year 1965.

Affiliated Directors.

(g) Jack J. Dreyfus, Jr. had been an affiliated director since approximately January 1, 1965.

(h) Howard Stein had been an affiliated director since approximately January 1, 1966.

19. My examination of the aforesaid N-1R sworn statements and prospectuses filed with the SEC by The Dreyfus Fund, Inc. reveals that during each of the years 1965, 1966, 1967 and 1968, the unaffiliated directors approved the investment adviser contracts in question.

20. Accordingly, the unaffiliated directors of The Dreyfus Fund, Inc. who would have voted on plaintiff's demand on December 18, 1968, had he made one, were, with one limited exception (Howard B. Keppel), precisely the same ones that composed the board when the investment adviser contracts in question were approved.

IN RE KAUFFMAN MUTUAL FUND ACTIONS

(JOSEPH B. KAUFFMAN, Petitioner)

JOINT BRIEF IN OPPOSITION TO PETITION FOR WRIT OF CERTIORARI

These derivative actions were dismissed by the United States District Court for the District of Massachusetts because of the failure of petitioner (hereinafter "plaintiff") to allege with sufficient particularity excuse for not making demand upon the directors of each of the four mutual funds (the "Kauffman funds") on whose behalf he seeks to sue.[1] The decision of the District Court was affirmed by the [1] Plaintiff is a shareholder in The Dreyfus Fund, Inc., Manhattan Fund, Inc., Fidelity Trend Fund, Inc., and The Putnam Growth Fund. Fidelity Trend Fund, Inc., is a Massachusetts corporation; The Putnam Growth Fund is a Massachusetts business trust. These two funds are sometimes hereinafter referred to as the "Massachusetts Kauffman funds." The word "directors" as used in this brief includes the trustees of The Putnam Growth Fund.

Court of Appeals for the First Circuit, which did not reach the District Court's further holding that the complaint also failed to allege sufficient excuse for not making demand upon the shareholders of the Massachusetts Kauffman funds.

QUESTION PRESENTED

Only one question need be reached to determine whether the Petition should be granted:

> Should this Court review a case in which none of the considerations set forth in Rule 19 of the Rules of the Supreme Court is present and in which both Courts below found that the complaint failed to allege with the particularity required by Fed. R. Civ. P. 23.1 sufficient reasons to excuse plaintiff's failure to make demand upon the directors?

The Petition seeks to raise two other issues, both resolved in favor of respondents (hereinafter "defendants") by the Courts below, neither of which need be reached unless this Court answers the foregoing question in the affirmative. In that event the additional issues presented are as follows:

> 1. Should this Court review the exercise of discretion by the Court of Appeals (a) in refusing to accept as an enlargement of the record on appeal an affidavit tendered with a petition for rehearing, and (b) in refusing permission to amend the complaint in accordance with the affidavit, where the proffered affidavit and the proposed amendment would not cure defects in the complaint found by the Courts below?
> 2. Should this Court review the determination of the District Court that demand upon the shareholders of two Massachusetts-based funds was also required, where the District Court correctly followed United Copper Securities Co. v. Amalgamated Copper Co., 244 U.S. 261 (1917), in holding that demand upon shareholders is required in a derivative action under the Sherman Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1, and where the Court of Appeals found it unnecessary to pass upon that issue?

PROCEDURAL RULE INVOLVED

The Petition involves Rule 23.1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure ("Rule 23.1"). The full text of this Rule is as follows:

> In a derivative action brought by one or more shareholders or members to enforce a right of a corporation or of an unincorporated association, the corporation or association having failed to enforce a right which may properly be asserted by it, the complaint shall be verified and shall allege (1) that the plaintiff was a shareholder or member at the time of the transaction of which he complains or that his share or membership thereafter devolved on him by operation of law, and (2) that the action is not a collusive one to confer jurisdiction on a court of the United States which it would not otherwise have. The complaint shall also allege with particularity the efforts, if any, made by the plaintiff to obtain the action he desires from the directors or comparable authority and, if necessary, from the shareholders or members, and the reasons for his failure to obtain the action or for not making the effort. The derivative action may not be maintained if it appears that the plaintiff does not fairly and adequately represent the interests of the shareholders or members similarly situated in enforcing the right of the corporation or association. The action shall not be dismissed or compromised without the approval of the court, and notice of the proposed dismissal or compromise shall be given to shareholders or members in such manner as the court directs.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

A. History of the Litigation Prior to Transfer to the District of Massachusetts

Plaintiff, who is also a counsel of record, is a shareholder in the four Kauffman funds. His complaint, filed in December 1968, contained three counts. Count I, which is the only count before the Court, alleges that defendants, in contravention of the antitrust laws, conspired to fix the management fees paid by each mutual fund to its investment adviser, to limit competition in the business of providing investment advisory services and to refrain from providing internal investment management. Counts II and III, which allege various causes of action under the federal securities laws, have been severed.

Plaintiff's suit was instituted in a variety of capacities[2] against 141 defendants, comprising each of the Kauffman funds and 61 other funds in which plaintiff owned no shares,[3] their investment advisers, directors affiliated with both funds and advisers, and the Investment Company Institute, the trade association for the mutual fund industry. Each named defendant other than the Investment Company Institute was also sued as a representative of a class of other funds, advisers and affiliated directors.

[2] Plaintiff sought to maintain this action (a) in his own right as a shareholder in the four Kauffman funds, (b) as a class representative on behalf of all other shareholders of the 65 defendant funds and all other funds affiliated therewith or related thereto, (c) derivatively on behalf of the four Kauffman funds, (d) by virtue of his representative status, derivatively on behalf of the 61 non-Kauffman funds and all other funds affiliated therewith or related thereto and (e) by virtue of his derivative status, representatively on behalf of the 61 non-Kauffman funds and all other funds affiliated therewith or related thereto. See Kauffman v. The Dreyfus Fund, Inc., 434 F.2d 727, 732 (3d Cir. 1970), cert. denied, 401 U.S. 974 (1971).

[3] It would appear that the selection of these fund defendants was based upon their size since plaintiff chose to name only funds with assets in excess of $100,000,000. Moody's Bank & Finance Manual a53 (1968); A. Wiesenberger, Investment Companies, Mutual Funds and Other Types 104-109 (28th ed. 1968).

In each of the Kauffman funds the unaffiliated directors [4] constituted a majority of the board. (Respondents' Appendix [hereinafter "Resp. App."] 18a-27a). No unaffiliated director of any of these funds (or of any other fund) was joined either as a named defendant or as a member of any defendant class, and none was named as a co-conspirator. (Compl. ¶¶ 30-31 at Petitioner's Appendix [hereinafter "Pet. App."] B9-B10). Nevertheless, plaintiff admittedly made no prior demand upon the directors or shareholders of the Kauffman funds.

Faced with this monumental complaint, defendants, in April 1969, filed a detailed schedule of motions. (Resp. App. 1a-13a). Included were motions challenging the standing and capacity of plaintiff, motions addressed to jurisdiction, venue and process, and motions under Rule 23.1.

[4] The Investment Company Act of 1940, 15 U.S.C. §§ 80a-1 et seq. (herein referred to as the "Act"), closely regulates and controls the mutual fund industry. The Act defines an investment company (herein referred to as a "fund") as a business primarily engaged in investing, reinvesting or trading in securities, 15 U.S.C. § 80a-3(a), and an investment adviser (herein referred to as an "adviser") as one who furnishes investment advice to a fund pursuant to a written contract, 15 U.S.C. § 80a-2(a)(20). Most funds are "externally managed" by the adviser which generally has formed the fund and some of whose directors are also directors of the fund. This mode of management is contemplated by the Act.

During the period in question, any fund director was deemed "affiliated" with the adviser if he was an officer, director, partner, or employee of the adviser or owned 5 per cent or more of the voting securities of the adviser. 15 U.S.C. § 80a-2(a)(3). Section 10(a) of the Act, at the time this action was commenced, provided that at least 40 per cent of the directors of a fund must not be "affiliated" with the fund's adviser, subject to certain specific exceptions. 54 Stat. 806. It was the intent of Congress that these unaffiliated directors would be "independent, watch-dog directors." Moses v. Burgin, 445 F.2d 369, 376 (1st Cir.), cert. denied, 404 U.S. 994 (1971).

The District Court directed that the motions addressed to plaintiff's standing as a class representative be briefed and argued first (Resp. App. 14a-15a), denied these motions, and certified them for interlocutory appeal. Kauffman v. The Dreyfus Fund, Inc., 51 F.R.D. 18 (D.N.J. 1969). The Third Circuit reversed and ordered the complaint dismissed except to the limited extent that it alleged derivative claims on behalf of the four Kauffman funds. Kauffman v. The Dreyfus Fund, Inc., 434 F.2d 727, 738 (3d Cir. 1970), cert. denied, 401 U.S. 974 (1971). See clause (c) of footnote 2 at page 4, supra.

After the action was remanded to the New Jersey District Court, plaintiff consented to the granting of defendants' motions directed to jurisdiction, venue and process. The District Court severed Count I from the other counts, divided Count I into ten separate actions, retained one of those actions in the District of New Jersey and transferred the others to nine other districts. Plaintiff thereafter applied to the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation for pre-trial consolidation pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1407(a). The Panel transferred the actions based upon Count I to the District of Massachusetts for consolidated pre-trial proceedings. In re Kauffman Mutual Fund Actions, 337 F. Supp. 1337 (J.P.M.L. 1972).

B. Action of the District Court and Court of Appeals on the Rule 23.1 Motions

Pursuant to a pre-trial order, defendants promptly brought on in the District of Massachusetts the Rule 23.1 motions, which had been held in abeyance by the District Court in New Jersey, and two other motions.[5] The motions now before this Court sought dismissal of the complaint for failure to make a demand upon either (a) the directors of each of the four Kauffman funds (the "director demand motion") or (b) the shareholders of the two Massachusetts Kauffman funds (the "shareholder demand motion"). (Resp. App. 16a-17a; Pet. App. A25).

Plaintiff filed a lengthy affidavit in opposition to these motions. On the director demand issue he made no attempt to supplement his complaint; on the shareholder demand issue he contented himself with statements as to the number of shareholders in the Massachusetts Kauffman funds. Defendants filed reply affidavits setting forth, as of the date of filing of the complaint, the number and identities of the directors of each of the Kauffman funds, specifying those who were at that time unaffiliated within the meaning of § 2(a)(3) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 80a-2(a)(3). (Resp. App. 18a-27a).

[5] The other two motions — a motion to dismiss because of plaintiff's inability to provide fair representation and a waiver motion — were denied by the District Court. Plaintiff's complaint, as originally filed, sought monetary damages from the very funds on whose behalf he was purporting to sue. Confronted with charges of disabling conflicts of interests on the initial set of motions before the District Court of New Jersey, he "relinquished any claim for monetary damages against the funds." Kauffman v. The Dreyfus Fund, Inc., 434 F.2d 727, 737 (3d Cir. 1970), cert. denied, 401 U.S. 974 (1971). The fair representation motion before the District Court of Massachusetts asserted that this relinquishment was undertaken simply to preserve plaintiff's own standing and emphasized his inability to represent fairly and adequately the interests he purported to represent. The waiver motion, filed by the 61 funds in which plaintiff owned no shares, asserted that those defendants were no longer proper parties to the action because of plaintiff's relinquishment and that the action should therefore be dismissed as to them.

Plaintiff filed no affidavit contesting any of the matters contained in these reply affidavits. At the argument on these motions he reasserted his reliance upon the sufficiency of his complaint.[6]

The District Court granted both the director demand and the shareholder demand motions, and dismissed the complaint without prejudice.[7] The District Court held that "[i]f Rule 23.1 is to be more than a nicety of pleading and is to safeguard corporations from abuse [citation omitted], it must mandate that there be some merit to allegations of 'futility' of demand", and found that plaintiff had "not sufficiently shown the merits of his allegations of futility." (Pet. App. A18). The District Court noted that the complaint failed to charge unaffiliated directors with specific misconduct and that a majority of each of the boards was unaffiliated at the time demand should have been made. Considering, among other things, the allegations of the complaint upon which plaintiff sought to rely and noting the statutory role of the unaffiliated directors of mutual funds and the presumption set forth in § 2(a)(9) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 80a-2(a)(9), the District Court held that the conclusory allegation of domination and control of the funds' direc-

[6] The following colloquy occurred:

THE COURT: You are asking the Court then to look just to the face of the complaint?

MR. PITTINSKY: That is correct, your Honor.

THE COURT: And apply the basic rule that [the allegations] must be accepted as truthful for the purpose of these motions.

MR. PITTINSKY. That is correct, your Honor. . . .

THE COURT: You also represent that your complaint is sufficient in making the same allegation that you now argue?

MR. PITTINSKY: That is correct, your Honor. (Resp. App. 28a).

[7] Pet. App. A22; Resp. App. 29a-30a.

torates by the affiliated directors was insufficient under Rule 23.1 to demonstrate futility of demand. (Pet. App. A18-A19).

Plaintiff, again choosing to stand upon his complaint without seeking to amend, appealed to the First Circuit, which affirmed the judgment of the District Court upon the director demand motion. The Court of Appeals rested its decision on the grounds that (1) plaintiff's "allegation of domination and control [of the unaffiliated majority of the directors of each Kauffman fund], unsupported by underlying facts, does not satisfy the requirement of particularity" of Rule 23.1; (2) "the complaint does not allege that those who were unaffiliated directors at the time of suit participated" in the alleged conspiracy; and (3) even if the same unaffiliated directors at the time of suit had participated in the transactions complained of, "[a]pproval by the directors of action alleged to be injurious to the corporation is not sufficient to excuse demand . . . absent self-interest or other indication of bias." (Pet. App. A29-A32). In light of that resolution, the Court of Appeals found it unnecessary to reach the question whether the District Court had properly granted the shareholder demand motion.

Plaintiff filed a petition for rehearing and tendered an affidavit purporting to show that substantially all of the unaffiliated directors of the Kauffman funds at the time of commencement of the action had been in office for several years. That petition requested that the case be remanded to the District Court to permit the complaint to be amended in accordance with the proffered affidavit. The Court of Appeals accepted the affidavit for identification purposes only, and denied the petition in a Memorandum and Order which gave full consideration to each of plaintiff's arguments and requests. (Pet. App. A42-A44).

REASONS FOR DENYING THE WRIT

The Court of Appeals' decision follows long-standing and controlling precedent, does not conflict with decisions of this Court or of any Court of Appeals, and does not present any issue worthy of review by this Court.

I. THE FIRST CIRCUIT CORRECTLY DECIDED THE DIRECTOR DEMAND ISSUE IN ACCORDANCE WITH CONTROLLING PRECEDENT.

Plaintiff is asking this Court to examine anew the allegations of his complaint despite the determinations by the Courts below that those allegations were insufficient to excuse a demand upon directors prior to the commencement of the original action. The decisions of the Courts below are supported by well-settled precedent. E.g., Foss v. Harbottle, 2 Hare 461, 67 Eng. Rep. 189 (Ch. 1843); Dodge v. Woolsey, 59 U.S. (18 How.) 331, 341-46 (1855); MacDougall v. Gardiner, L.R. 1 Ch. 13 (1875); Hawes v. Oakland, 104 U.S. 450 (1881); Delaware & Hudson Co. v. Albany & S. R.R., 213 U.S. 435 (1909). The general rule was stated by the Court in Hawes:

> "[A derivative plaintiff must demonstrate that] the board of directors, or a majority of them, are acting for their own interest, in a manner destructive of the corporation itself, or of the rights of the other shareholders; [or that] . . . the majority of shareholders themselves are oppressively and illegally pursuing a course in the name of the corporation, which is in violation of the rights of the other shareholders, and which can only be restrained by the aid of a court of equity." 104 U.S. at 460.

The Court in Hawes further held that the "cause of failure [to induce corporate action] . . . should be stated with particularity." Id. at 461. Rule 23.1 embodies this principle. See 3B J. Moore, Federal Practice ¶ 23.1.19 at 23.1-251 (2d ed. 1948).

This rule of pleading is based upon the reluctance of courts to interfere in the internal affairs of a corporation before all intracorporate remedies have been exhausted by the complaining shareholder. See Hawes, 104 U.S. at 460-61; Note, Demand on Directors and Shareholders as a Prerequisite to Derivative Suit, 73 Harv. L. Rev. 746, 748-49 (1960). The demand requirement has an additional purpose:

> "[R]emoval of the suit from the would-be plaintiff's exclusive control has the additional effect of eliminating the danger of a secret settlement between him and the alleged wrongdoers. Moreover, the mere possibility of such removal discourages one of the major abuses in the use of the derivative suit, namely, its employment as a device to enable plaintiff's counsel to earn substantial fees." Id. at 749 (Footnote omitted).[8]

In applying these fundamental principles the Court of Appeals relied on Hawes, Delaware & Hudson and such other cases as Lucking v. Delano, 117 F.2d 159, 160 (6th Cir. 1941), in which it was held that "[a] bare allegation of the futility of such a demand is not sufficient without allegations of fact showing how and why the demand would be futile." Accord, Wathen v. Jackson Oil & Refining Co., 235 U.S. 635, 639-40 (1915); Robison v. Caster, 356 F.2d 924, 926-27 (7th Cir. 1966).

[8] This latter rationale is highlighted by the fact that, as originally framed, plaintiff's complaint sought to force the Kauffman funds and 61 other funds to sue one another and nearly everyone else in the mutual fund industry except, notably, the unaffiliated directors of the various funds.

II. THE DECISION OF THE FIRST CIRCUIT DOES NOT CONFLICT WITH DECISIONS OF THIS COURT OR OF OTHER COURTS OF APPEALS.

Plaintiff argues, erroneously, that the First Circuit reached a result that conflicts with specified decisions of this Court and various other Courts of Appeals. The cases which he cites in support of his contention are not in point. Plaintiff is actually asking this Court to overturn well-settled precedent embodied in the requirement of Rule 23.1 that demand be made on directors by a derivative plaintiff unless he can demonstrate with particularity sufficient excuse for failure to make the demand.

Plaintiff relies heavily on Smith v. Sperling, 354 U.S. 91 (1957). But the First Circuit recognized that that case involved the very different issue whether the corporate beneficiary of a derivative action is a real, or only a nominal, defendant for the purposes of determining diversity of citizenship. (Pet. App. A33 n.5)[9] As its opinion clearly states, this Court made no decision on the director demand requirement; moreover, it deferred to the lower court in making the necessary factual determination. 354 U.S. at 93-95.

Plaintiff also relies on Cathedral Estates, Inc. v. Taft Realty Corp., 228 F.2d 85, 86 (2d Cir. 1955). There the holders of 92 per cent of the corporate stock — obviously sufficient to elect a majority of the board of directors — were named as defendants and alleged to have made a [9] This is made clear by Swanson v. Traer, 354 U.S. 114 (1957) (the companion case to Smith v. Sperling), in which the Court, after aligning the derivative corporation as a defendant for diversity purposes, remanded the case to the Court of Appeals for consideration of the director demand issue. The Court of Appeals then dismissed the complaint for failure to comply with the demand requirements. 249 F.2d 854 (7th Cir. 1957). See Venner v. Great Northern Ry., 209 U.S. 24 (1908).

fraudulent conveyance to a corporation wholly owned by them. In Delaware & Hudson Co. v. Albany & S.R.R., 213 U.S. 435, 450 (1909), the directors and officers of the alleged corporate wrongdoer constituted a majority of the directors of the derivative corporate defendant. In DePinto v. Provident Security Life Ins. Co., 323 F.2d 826, 829-30 & n.8 (9th Cir. 1963), cert. denied, 376 U.S. 950 (1964), the Court made an express finding that the derivative corporate defendant did not act in good faith in seeking to bar the derivative plaintiff from prosecuting his action. In Liboff v. Wolfson, 437 F.2d 121, 122 (5th Cir. 1971), all of the directors were named as defendants, and it was expressly admitted that the alleged principal wrongdoer controlled the board. In the other case cited by plaintiff in support of his contention of a conflict of decisions, all of the members of the board of directors were named as defendants. Meltzer v. Atlantic Research Corp., 330 F.2d 946, 947-48 (4th Cir.), cert. denied, 379 U.S. 841 (1964). No such facts were alleged nor are they to be found in the present case. It has not been claimed (nor could it be) that the affiliated directors of the Kauffman funds — a minority of each of their respective boards — controlled sufficient stock to elect the boards of the Kauffman funds.

Moreover, the complaint does not allege any wrongdoing by the unaffiliated directors (see Compl. ¶¶ 28 & 30 at Pet. App. B8-B9), who at all relevant times comprised a majority of the boards of each of the Kauffman funds. (Pet. App. C1-C7; Resp. App. 18a-27a). Significantly, none of the unaffiliated directors has been named as a defendant, as a member of a class of defendants or as a co-conspirator. Rather, in conclusory fashion, plaintiff alleges that the boards of all 65 funds named as defendants are "dominated and controlled" by their respective advisers and certain of their affiliated directors. Judge Aldrich's analysis of paragraphs 10, 22-25 and 27-30 of the complaint establishes the failure of those paragraphs to allege with sufficient particularity that the unaffiliated majority of any Kauffman fund was "controlled" by the affiliated minority. (Pet. App. A25-A29).

In an attempt to cure this insufficiency, plaintiff inaccurately asserts that his complaint alleges that all the members of the boards of directors participated in, approved of, and acquiesced in the claimed antitrust violations. (Pet. pp. 3-4, 17). The complaint, however, only makes such allegations concerning named defendants. (Compl. ¶ 30 at Pet. App. B9). None of the unaffiliated directors was named as a defendant or as a co-conspirator, nor was any such director included within any of the classes of defendants in this action. As found by the Court of Appeals:

> "Apart from [the conclusory allegation of] 'control,' only the affiliated directors — a minority of each board — are alleged to have 'acquiesced, encouraged, cooperated and assisted in the effectuation and maintenance' of the conspiracy. The unaffiliated directors are not named as defendants, or even as the ones who approved the acts complained of." (Pet. App. A30) (Emphasis added).

"Various other corporations, individuals and entities", whose identities were allegedly "presently unknown to plaintiff", are also accused of having participated in the conspiracy. (Compl. ¶ 31 at Pet. App. B9-B10) (Emphasis added). However, the identity of the unaffiliated directors of the Kauffman funds was public information and was certainly known to plaintiff as a shareholder in these four funds. Had he intended to charge the unaffiliated directors with participation in this supposed conspiracy, it seems clear that he would have named them in the complaint.

Plaintiff also attempts to use Smith v. Sperling, 354 U.S. 91 (1957), for the proposition that the Kauffman funds' procedural motions demonstrate "antagonism" sufficient to excuse the necessity of making demand. Even though demonstration of procedural antagonism may be sufficient under Smith v. Sperling to support diversity jurisdiction, its acceptance for purposes of Rule 23.1 would render the demand requirement a nullity. If the corporation on whose behalf the suit was brought did not raise the question of failure to make demand, that would be the end of the matter. If it did raise the question, the plaintiff could seize upon that very action to excuse his failure to have made demand. Such a result is totally inconsistent with Rule 23.1, for it would permit every derivative plaintiff to ignore the demand requirement with impunity. As Judge Aldrich pointed out, plaintiff's argument for excusing demand is "classic bootstrap." (Pet. App. A30).[10]

III. NO IMPORTANT ISSUES ARE RAISED BY THE DECISIONS BELOW.

A. Both Lower Courts Correctly Concluded That Plaintiff Failed to Plead With Sufficient Particularity Reasons For Excusing Demand on Directors. This Court Should Not Review That Finding.

In this case, both the District Court and the Court of Appeals applied to the complaint accepted rules and found that the allegations purporting to show reasons for a failure to make demand were inadequate. This issue is not

[10] Similarly, the fact that plaintiff was not afforded discovery on the issue of demand (e.g., Pet. pp. 8-9), should be given no weight whatsoever. In the Courts below, he insisted that he was relying solely on the allegations of his complaint. (See pp. 7-9 and footnote 6, supra.) In any event, as Judge Aldrich recognized,

> "[T]he stockholder may not plead in general terms, hoping that, by discovery or otherwise, he can later establish a case. Indeed, if the requirement could be met otherwise, it would be meaningless." (Pet. App. A29).

one of great moment or precedential value. It is simply a pleading question which this Court has indicated should be entrusted to the lower courts. See, e.g., Swanson v. Traer, 354 U.S. 114 (1957) (remand for a determination whether the complaint justified failure to make demand). See also 3B J. Moore, Federal Practice ¶ 23.1.19 at 23.1-254 (2d ed. 1948). The detailed review afforded this complaint by the two Courts below, both reaching the same result, is more than sufficient. Cf. Berenyi v. Immigration Dir., 385 U.S. 630, 635 (1967); United States v. Dickinson, 331 U.S. 745, 749 (1947). In essence all the Petition seeks is to have this Court rummage once again through the twice-rejected allegations of plaintiff's conclusory and plainly defective complaint.

B. The District Court's Additional Holding on Shareholder Demand Does Not Present an Appropriate Question For Review.

One half of plaintiff's argument in the Petition is devoted to an issue which the Court of Appeals properly found unnecessary to reach — the effect of plaintiff's failure to comply with the shareholder demand requirements of Rule 23.1. The First Circuit's holding on the issue of director demand resulted in the dismissal of the entire case. If this Court concludes that the director demand issue should not be reviewed, it would be inappropriate to grant review on the shareholder demand issue — an alternative holding of the District Court — since a determination of that issue would not change the result in the case: the complaint would still stand dismissed. To review the shareholder demand question under such circumstances would be tantamount to rendering an advisory opinion on a moot question. See, e.g., Barr v. Matteo, 335 U.S. 171, 172 (1957).

Both Fidelity Trend Fund, Inc., and The Putnam Growth Fund are organized under Massachusetts law. It is well-settled under Massachusetts law that so long as a majority of the shareholders are disinterested they must be given an opportunity to decide whether, in their sound business judgment, it is in the interest of the corporation to proceed with a derivative suit. S. Solomont & Sons Trust, Inc. v. New England Theatres Operating Corp., 326 Mass. 99, 112-14, 93 N.E.2d 241, 248 (1950); Bartlett v. New York, N.H. & H.R.R., 221 Mass. 530, 532-33, 109 N.E. 452, 453-54 (1915). The rule applies with respect to charges that the federal antitrust laws have been violated as well as to all other corporate causes of action. Solomont, 326 Mass. at 104-05, 93 N.E.2d at 244.

The District Court found that under the shareholder demand provisions of Rule 23.1 these principles of Massachusetts law were controlling. In so doing, it concluded that the law of the state of incorporation determines the extent to which it is "necessary" (within the meaning of the Rule) for a plaintiff to make demand on his fellow shareholders, when the applicable federal statute (in this case the Sherman Act) is silent.

The District Court acted in accordance with the controlling precedent of United Copper Securities Co. v. Amalgamated Copper Co., 244 U.S. 261, 264 (1917), in which this Court specifically declared its concern that intracorporate remedies be observed in Sherman Act cases:

> "No application appears to have been made to the stockholders as a body or indeed to any other stockholders individually; nor does it appear that there was no opportunity to make it, and no special facts are shown which render such application unnecessary. For aught that appears, the course pursued by the directors has the approval of all the stockholders except the > plaintiffs. The fact that the cause of action is based on the Sherman Law does not limit the discretion of the directors or the power of the body of stockholders; nor does it give to individual shareholders the right to interfere with the internal management of the corporation." [11]

Nothing turns on plaintiff's argument that federal law controls the shareholder demand issue since, even if federal law does apply, his complaint plainly fails to meet the federal shareholder demand requirement. Hawes v. Oakland, 104 U.S. 450, 461 (1881), holds that a shareholder who intends to bring a derivative suit

> "must show, if he fails with the directors, that he has made an honest effort to obtain action by the stockholders as a body, in the matter of which he complains. And he must show a case, if this is not done, where it could not be done, or it was not reasonable to require it."

See United Copper Securities Co. v. Amalgamated Copper Co., 244 U.S. 261, 264 (1917). Swanson v. Traer, 354 U.S. 114, 116-17 (1957), makes it clear that any "federal" demand requirement is that set forth in Hawes. See also Quirke v. St. Louis-S.F. Ry., 277 F.2d 705, 707-08 (8th Cir.), cert. denied, 363 U.S. 845 (1960). Plaintiff made not the slightest effort to obtain shareholder action and his complaint is devoid of any justification for his failure to do so.

[11] Plaintiff's use of ellipsis and italicization (Pet. p. 30) distorts the rule of United Copper. As that case makes clear, demand must be made separately on the directors and on the shareholders unless plaintiff alleges with sufficient particularity an excuse for failure to make demand upon both directors and shareholders. Moreover, plaintiff cites Levitt v. Johnson, 334 F.2d 815 (1st Cir. 1964), cert. denied, 379 U.S. 961 (1965), without making any reference to footnote 5 of that decision. There the First Circuit recognized the applicability of the rule of United Copper to antitrust cases. 334 F.2d at 820 n.5.

C. Refusal By the Court of Appeals to Grant Plaintiff Leave to File an Affidavit or to Amend His Complaint Was Within the Court's Discretion.

1. The facts which plaintiff sought to assert would not cure the defects in his complaint.

In support of his petition for rehearing by the First Circuit, plaintiff tendered his affidavit and sought to amend his complaint in a belated attempt to state no more than that the unaffiliated directors of the Kauffman funds at the time he filed his complaint were substantially the same as those in office at the time of the alleged wrongdoing. This assertion would not, as the First Circuit observed (Pet. App. A43), have cured his inability to plead, as required by Hawes v. Oakland, 104 U.S. 450, 460 (1881), that the unaffiliated directors were biased or acting in their own self-interest or in a manner destructive of the corporation or of the rights of the other shareholders. The First Circuit stated:

> "Even if we could assume that there had never been a change in the complement of the boards of directors, and that those who were the directors at the time of the suit had approved of the transactions presently attacked, it would not follow that mere prior participation would excuse making the demand. Where mere approval of the corporate action, absent self-interest or other indication of bias, is the sole basis for establishing the directors' 'wrongdoing' and hence for excusing demand on them, plaintiff's suit should ordinarily be dismissed." (Pet. App. A31-A32).

Plaintiff's attempt to overturn the dismissal of his complaint based on the refusal of the Court of Appeals to accept his affidavit or to remand with leave to amend is not germane since both the District Court and the Court of Appeals would, in any event, have reached the same decision. See 3 J. Moore, Federal Practice ¶¶ 15.08[4] at 905 & 15.09 at 958-59 (2d ed. 1948).

2. The First Circuit's refusal on rehearing to consider new factual matters presented by plaintiff was correct and constituted a sound exercise of its discretion.

The action of the First Circuit in rejecting plaintiff's affidavit and denying leave to amend was within its discretion and in accordance with settled legal principles. Plaintiff adamantly insisted throughout these lengthy proceedings upon the sufficiency of his complaint. See pp. 7-9 and footnote 6, supra. There was no abuse of discretion when the Court of Appeals concluded plaintiff should be bound by the determination of the District Court that demand was necessary before he could proceed further.

The power of a court of appeals to modify or enlarge the record is defined by Fed. R. App. P. 10(e). That rule permits the district court or the court of appeals to supply or correct "anything material . . . omitted . . . by error or accident or . . . misstated . . . ." Plaintiff cannot claim that his proffered affidavit was omitted from the record by error or accident or that the allegations of his complaint were misstated. Several courts have held that the further provision in Fed. R. App. P. 10(e) that "[a]ll other questions as to the form and content of the record shall be presented to the court of appeals" does not permit additions to the record of any material not before the district court. E.g., United States ex rel. Kellogg v. McBee, 452 F.2d 134, 137 (7th Cir. 1971); Munich v. United States, 330 F.2d 774, 776 (9th Cir. 1964).

In any event, whatever power a court of appeals has to allow additions to the record of material not before the district court is plainly discretionary. Cf. Zenith Radio Corp. v. Hazeltine Research, Inc., 401 U.S. 321, 331-32 (1971) (motion before trial judge to reopen record to admit additional proof "is addressed to his sound discretion").

Moreover, here the affidavit was not tendered until after the Court of Appeals' adverse decision. In these circumstances this Court should not be asked to utilize its certiorari power to review an exercise of discretion.

The First Circuit's concomitant refusal on well-articulated grounds to grant leave to amend was also proper. Cf. Foman v. Davis, 371 U.S. 178, 182 (1962).[12] Plaintiff made no attempt to amend his complaint after he had been put on notice at the outset of the action of defendants' intention to bring on Rule 23.1 motions. Nor did he attempt to amend his complaint after the decision of the Third Circuit limiting the action to a derivative suit on behalf of the Kauffman funds. Finally, he made no attempt to amend his complaint after the decision of the District Court on the present motion.[13] Indeed, plaintiff repeatedly insisted that he was relying on the allegations of his complaint as filed.

[12] As Judge Aldrich stated:

> "[We are not] moved at this time to permit an amendment to the complaint. Surely plaintiff must have realized his obligation to show an excuse extending to the majority of the Board. Cathedral Estates v. Taft Realty Corp., 2 Cir., 1955, 228 F.2d 85. Defendants' brief abundantly pointed out that the unaffiliated directors constituted the majority of each board, and there was ample time for plaintiff to make its now proffered assertion. This is particularly so as to a plaintiff who complains that the case has been vigorously defended for four years." (Pet. App. A43) (Footnote omitted).

[13] Plaintiff's suggestion (Pet. p. 18) that the District Court's opinion made amendment impossible is based on a distorted reading of that decision. The District Court did not hold that the statutory presumption contained in § 2(a)(9) of the Act conclusively determined the issue of director demand. It simply referred to that presumption in the context of emphasizing the basic requirement of Rule 23.1 that facts relating to the question of director demand be pleaded "with particularity." (Pet. App. A18) (Emphasis added).

In cases where an appellant raises the issue of amendment for the first time after electing to appeal and losing, it has been held that no amendment will be considered. See 222 East Chestnut St. Corp. v. Lakefront Realty Corp., 256 F.2d 513, 515 (7th Cir.), cert. denied, 358 U.S. 907 (1958); Feddersen Motors, Inc. v. Ward, 180 F.2d 519, 523 (10th Cir. 1950).[14] This rule is appropriate to prevent unsuccessful suitors from barraging courts of appeals with requests for advisory opinions on the sufficiency of their pleadings, secure in the belief that an adverse decision would do no more than require them to amend their pleadings. Its application is especially appropriate here since plaintiff must have

[14] The only cases concerning amendment cited by plaintiff (Pet. 20) involved situations where the appellants had sought and been denied leave to amend in the District Court. Foman v. Davis, 371 U.S. 178, 179 (1962) and Ballou v. General Electric Co., 393 F.2d 398, 399 (1st Cir. 1968). That important distinction explains the courts' language in those cases concerning liberality of amendment. As Judge Aldrich stated:

> "Plaintiff's citation of [Ballou] in which we recognized there would be a right to amend on a quite different set of facts does not mean that the right exists at all stages of a case or regardless of the type of pleading deficiency." (Pet. App. A43 n.1) (Emphasis added).

The few other cases which have permitted post-appeal amendment turn on facts not present in this case. For example, the Court of Appeals was not faced with a curable defect in the allegations establishing diversity jurisdiction, made correctable by 28 U.S.C. § 1653, Brooks v. Yawkey, 200 F.2d 663, 664 (1st Cir. 1953); nor with the possibility of affirming a dismissal on a second issue, not passed upon below, on which the District Court might have permitted amendment, Klebanow v. New York Produce Exchange, 344 F.2d 294, 299-300 (2d Cir. 1965); nor with an order of dismissal in the District Court which failed to state its ground and, therefore, left the plaintiff unable to offer a correcting amendment, Griffin v. Locke, 286 F.2d 514, 515 (9th Cir. 1961); nor did the Court of Appeals affirm the decision of the District Court for reasons different from those relied on by the District Court, as to which the plaintiff might have offered an amendment which would have cured the defects in his complaint, Oil Workers Union v. Delta Refining Co., 277 F.2d 694, 696-98 (6th Cir. 1960).

realized from the outset his obligation to plead with particularity an excuse running to a majority of the boards of directors of the Kauffman funds. See Moviecolor, Ltd. v. Eastman Kodak Co., 288 F.2d 80, 88 (2d Cir. 1961).

In any event, the Court of Appeals' decision on amendment, like its decision on the affidavit, is one committed to its discretion. It is not appropriate to ask this Court to review the manner in which that discretion was exercised in this instance. See Sawyer v. Piper, 189 U.S. 154, 157 (1903). As the First Circuit recognized, plaintiff in this case has simply been guilty of undue delay. (Pet. App. A43). Foman v. Davis, 371 U.S. at 182.

D. The Decision Below Does Not Impair Private Enforcement of the Antitrust Laws.

Plaintiff extravagantly contends that the First Circuit's decision in this case "will immunize the mutual fund industry from the salutary proscriptions of the antitrust and securities laws", and that he should accordingly receive this Court's dispensation from well-established procedural rules so that he can proceed with his alleged derivative antitrust claims in spite of fatal flaws in his complaint. (Pet. p. 14). This contention is without merit.[15]

Plaintiff is in fact urging that the time-tested procedural requirements of Rule 23.1 be held inapplicable to antitrust [15] Neither the selective quotations from the testimony of Hamer H. Budge (Pet. pp. 13-14) nor the legislative history of the 1970 amendments to the Act reflect any suggestion by Congress or the SEC of antitrust violations. Indeed, the Commission in its study of the industry concluded "that on the whole investment companies have been diligently managed by competent persons and that the general record of the industry is one of which it can be justly proud." SEC, Public Policy Implications of Investment Company Growth, H.R. Rep. No. 2337, 89th Cong., 2d Sess. viii (1966).

cases. But this Court has expressly held that the demand requirement incident to the bringing of shareholder derivative suits is applicable to such cases. United Copper Securities Co. v. Amalgamated Copper Co., 244 U.S. 261, 263-64 (1917). See also Ash v. International Business Machines Corp., 353 F.2d 491, 492-93 (3d Cir. 1965), cert. denied, 384 U.S. 927 (1966). The First Circuit held in accordance with United Copper that the procedural requirements incident to a derivative suit instituted under Rule 23.1 are as applicable to an action instituted under the antitrust laws as they are to other derivative actions brought in the federal courts.[16]

If in this instance plaintiff's ability to enforce the antitrust laws has been impaired, he has only himself to blame. As pointed out by the Court of Appeals:

> "We recognize the social desirability of bona fide, well founded minority suits. We also recognize the tremendous waste involved in suits that are not well founded. We do not accept the dictum in deHaas v. Empire Petroleum Co., 10 Cir., 1970, 435 F.2d 1223, at 1228, that '[c]ourts have generally been lenient in excusing demand' if it is to be applied to allegations as substantively deficient as the present. Such easy remarks overlook the requirement that the directors' 'antagonism . . . be unmistakable.' Delaware & Hudson Co. v. Albany R.R. [213 U.S. 435 (1909)]. If, as plaintiff suggests, this frustrates his ability to prosecute a worthwhile suit, the answer is that he was not entitled to bring it." (Pet. App. A35).

[16] Nor are traditional rules suspended, as urged by plaintiff, simply because the derivative defendants happen to be mutual funds. The Third Circuit has already held in this case that "the public policy based strictures" on derivative actions apply to antitrust suits brought on behalf of mutual funds just as they do with respect to any other corporation. Kauffman v. The Dreyfus Fund, Inc., 434 F.2d 727, 732-34, 735 n.3 (3d Cir. 1970), cert. denied, 401 U.S. 974 (1971).

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons the Petition should be denied.

APPENDIX

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF NEW JERSEY

JOSEPH B. KAUFFMAN, Plaintiff, —against— THE DREYFUS FUND, INC., et al., Defendants.	Civil Action No. 1348-68

Proposed Agenda for Conference of

April 18, 1969

Pursuant to the Court's direction at the conference of February 21, 1969, the following agenda and attached papers have been circulated among defense counsel, and are submitted in connection with the conference scheduled for April 18, 1969. This submission is without prejudice to any defendant's right to suggest other items for the Court's consideration on April 18th.

1. Discussion of the entry of an Order providing that neither this submission nor the participation by any defendant in any conference or other proceedings in this Court shall be deemed a waiver of the right of any defendant to plead or otherwise move with respect to jurisdiction, venue, process or service; and providing further that participation in any motion by any defendant shall not be deemed a waiver of any rights of such defendant which may be raised by one or more subsequent motions.

2. Further identification of all counsel of record for each named defendant.

3. Report and discussion concerning the implementation of the Court's suggestion at the conference of February 21st that defense counsel consider the formation of a Steering Committee. For the convenience of the Court, the membership, purposes and functions of such a Steering Committee established by defendants are set forth in Attachment "A".

4. Scheduling of preliminary motions listed on Attachment "B".

5. Consideration of previous suggestion that Court and counsel set aside a certain day or days in every month for the handling of matters requiring the Court's attention.

6. Continued stay of all proceedings not specifically scheduled by the Court.

List of Preliminary Motions

The following list has been prepared and circulated among defense counsel to assist the Court in the scheduling of preliminary motions, and describes in a general, rather than a definitive manner, the motions which are now contemplated by one or more defendants.

Closely related motions have been grouped together for simultaneous filing and three groups have been arranged in sequence. These groups should be filed and taken up in series as set forth herein, since the disposition of one or more motions proposed for early filing should make it unnecessary to consider one or more of the motions proposed for later submission.

With the exception of the first group of motions, all groups are tentative, and subsequent developments may dictate revision. Accordingly, the list is submitted without prejudice to the rights of any defendant to file any appropriate additional motions upon proper notice, and without prejudice to the rights of any one or more defendants to determine not to participate in any motion, or to withdraw any motion altogether.

In order to proceed in the manner suggested, defendants request the Court to enter an Order providing: (i) that the filing of motions according to the schedule established by the Court shall not operate to waive or bar, under Rules 12(g) and 12(h) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, any defense or objection; and (ii) that the participation by any defendant in any motion shall not be deemed a waiver of any right of such defendant which may be raised by one or more subsequent motions.

A. FIRST GROUP:
MOTIONS ADDRESSED TO CAPACITY

The first group of five motions raises fundamental legal questions designed to determine the capacity or capacities in which plaintiff may sue, and the capacities in which defendants may be sued. These motions should be determined before there are any further proceedings in the case.

MOTION No. 1: To dismiss the complaint by reason of plaintiff's inability to provide fair and adequate representation.

The complaint places the mutual funds on both sides of the case — they are sued both as nominal defendants upon whose behalf derivative claims are asserted and damages are sought, and as actual defendants who allegedly have participated in the unlawful conduct complained of. As a result plaintiff and his attorney purport to protect the interests of the very funds from which they seek monetary damages. Defendants, accordingly, will move to dismiss the action on the grounds that plaintiff cannot fairly and adequately represent either the interests of the shareholders in enforcing the rights of the mutual funds, or the interests of the funds themselves.

Proposed Agenda for Conference of April 18, 1969

MOTION No. 2: To dismiss all claims on behalf of individual shareholders.

In addition to suing in a derivative capacity to assert corporate causes of action allegedly belonging to defendant mutual funds, plaintiff also purports to sue in a representative capacity to assert causes of action allegedly belonging to himself and all other shareholders of such funds individually. This motion will raise the fundamental legal question whether the injury alleged in the complaint vests any individual shareholder with a personal cause of action for damages, or whether the alleged injury gives rise only to corporate causes of action which belong solely and exclusively to the various defendant mutual funds.

In defendants' view the purported injuries complained of have been sustained, if at all, only by the mutual funds, and they alone are possessed of any causes of action for recovery. Accordingly, defendants will move to dismiss all claims upon behalf of individual shareholders. If this motion is granted, plaintiff will be restricted to suing solely in a derivative capacity for the assertion of corporate claims on behalf of the mutual funds.

MOTION No. 3: To dismiss all claims asserted derivatively on behalf of funds in which plaintiff is not a shareholder.

Plaintiff purports to sue derivatively on behalf of all sixty-five defendant mutual funds, although he alleges himself to be a shareholder in only four. In defendants' view, Rule 23.1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure explicitly precludes plaintiff from derivatively asserting corporate claims on behalf of funds in which he is not a shareholder, and an appropriate motion for dismissal will be made.

If granted, this motion would restrict plaintiff to the assertion of derivative claims on behalf of the four funds in which he owns shares.

MOTION No. 4: To dismiss all conspiracy claims under Counts II and III.

Under Counts II and III each defendant is sued in two capacities: (i) as an individual whose conduct has allegedly violated the Securities Exchange Act, the Investment Company Act and the Investment Advisers Act; and (ii) as a co-conspirator who has aided and abetted such violations by each of the other defendants. This motion will raise the question as to whether, under the statutes alleged, there is a cause of action for conspiracy.

Defendants are of the view that even if a remedy may be implied under the federal securities laws against any person who has breached a duty created by those statutes and owing to plaintiff or to those whose interests plaintiff may properly represent, no such remedy may be implied as against any person who does not stand in such a relationship. Accordingly, defendants will move to dismiss the conspiracy claims in Counts II and III for lack of subject matter jurisdiction, and failure to state a claim.

MOTION No. 5: To dismiss representative claims on behalf of shareholders of funds in which plaintiff is not a shareholder.

Should the Court determine that the complaint states individual or representative claims, defendants will move to dismiss all representative claims asserted on behalf of shareholders of the 61 mutual funds in which plaintiff is not himself a shareholder. In defendants' view, as a matter of law, a non-shareholder lacks standing to sue on behalf of shareholders.

SUMMARY: If the case is dismissed on the grounds set forth in Motion No. 1, all other motions will become moot. If Motion No. 1 is denied, but the other motions presented in this group are granted, the action will be reduced to a derivative suit on behalf of the four funds in which plaintiff claims to be a shareholder (or at most a derivative suit on behalf of such funds and a representative suit on behalf of the shareholders of such funds) against all defendants under Count 1, and against the defendants owing a statutory duty to those four funds under Counts II and III.

B. SECOND GROUP: MOTIONS ADDRESSED TO PLAINTIFF'S COMPLIANCE WITH STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS AND RELATED MOTIONS

After decision of the first group of motions has settled the basic structure of the case, the second group of motions will (if necessary) challenge the continuation of the action against some or all of the remaining defendants.

Motion No. 6: Motion challenging the foundation of the complaint.

The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure require that there be sufficient foundation for the commencement of any action in a Federal District Court. This motion will challenge the basis for the allegations in the complaint with respect to some or all of the defendants; if it is determined to be insufficient dismissal will be moved.

MOTION No. 7: To dismiss remaining derivative claims for failure to comply with the demand requirements.

Rule 23.1 FRCP requires a shareholder bringing suit derivatively on behalf of his corporation either to allege that unsuccessful demand was made upon the directors (and, if necessary, upon the shareholders) to assert the corporate claim, or to allege "with particularity" the reasons for his failure to make such demands. Motion No. 7 will challenge the sufficiency of the complaint in this respect. If the motion is granted all remaining derivative claims under all Counts will be eliminated from the case.

MOTION No. 8: To dismiss Count I as to certain individual defendants for lack of personal jurisdiction.

Service of process upon individual defendants has been attempted throughout the nation, and this motion will challenge the sufficiency of such service to confer jurisdiction over the person of individuals not served within the District of New Jersey.

Assuming proper venue, nationwide service upon individuals may be authorized under the statutes alleged in Counts II and III, but it is not authorized with respect to Count I. Accordingly, this motion will seek dismissal of Count I with respect to any individual not served within this District. The granting of the motion would reduce the number of defendants remaining subject to the antitrust conspiracy charge, and would remove from the case entirely any moving defendant with respect to whom Counts II and III have been dismissed by prior motion and Order.

MOTION No. 9: Other motions raising questions of service of process, jurisdiction or venue.

All other appropriate motions relating to service of process, jurisdiction and venue will be included in the second group of motions. Since these motions will depend in part upon the particular circumstances or methods of doing business of each of the defendants, whether individual or corporate, it is not practicable to attempt to complete enumeration at this time.

MOTION No. 10: To dismiss or stay on the basis of other litigation.

Various defendants sued in this action have previously been or are currently involved in litigation raising questions which are also presented in this case. This motion will raise certain questions as to the impact of such other litigation (e.g., collateral estoppel, the effect of stay orders entered therein by other District Courts, etc.) upon the continuation of all or any part of the present action.

C. THIRD GROUP: CLASS ACTION AND OTHER PRELIMINARY MOTIONS

After the first two groups of motions addressed to the major function of paring down the parties and issues in the case have been decided, the third group of motions will deal with remaining issues, if any, related to the ultimate form of the action.

MOTION No. 11: To dismiss claims against unnamed defendants.

The complaint purports to allege causes of action not only against the named defendants but also against classes represented by such named defendants as follows:

(a) each named defendant mutual fund "as a representative on behalf of all other externally managed mutual funds affiliated therewith or related thereto";

(b) each named defendant investment adviser "as a representative on behalf of all other investment advisers affiliated therewith or related thereto"; and

(c) each named individual defendant "as a representative of all other . . . directors similarly situated."

This motion will attack the appropriateness of the defendant classes — in particular, but without limitation, the appropriateness of defendant classes of "conspirators". If granted, this motion will eliminate the unnamed defendants from the case.

MOTION No. 12: To determine whether the case may be appropriately maintained as a class action.

If decision on the first group of motions relating to the capacity in which plaintiff may sue has not precluded the possibility of a class action for the reasons upon which those motions are based, one or more motions based upon the requirements of Rule 23 will be required to determine whether all or any portion of plaintiff's case is suitable for maintenance on a class basis against any or all defendants.

These motions may result in dismissal of the class action under any of the standards set forth in the Rule.

MOTION No. 13: To strike impertinent or scandalous matter.

The complaint contains certain impertinent or scandalous matter, such as the designation of the individual defendants as "self-dealing directors". Defendants will move to strike such allegations.

MOTION No. 14: To require plaintiff to post security for expenses.

With the filing of a broad and far-reaching complaint, the single plaintiff has exposed 141 named defendants to substantial expense. Defendants should be assured that in the event they prevail, those expenses can be recovered from plaintiff, and a motion will be made for the posting of security in an appropriate amount.

MOTION No. 15: To dismiss demand for jury trial with respect to derivative claims.

Derivative and class actions are equitable in nature, and accordingly defendants will move to strike the demand for jury trial with respect to all such claims.

D. FURTHER PRELIMINARY ACTION

At a subsequent stage of the proceedings it may be appropriate to have another pre-trial conference.

Notice of Motion

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that the undersigned defendants will, on a date to be fixed by the Court, make motions for the following orders:

(1) Pursuant to Rules 23 and 23.1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, dismissing the action on the grounds that, on the face of the Complaint, plaintiff does not fairly and adequately represent the interests of the funds or their shareholders;

(2) Pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, dismissing all claims asserted individually, or representatively on behalf of individual shareholders, on the ground that all of the claims asserted are necessarily derivative in nature;

(3) Pursuant to Rules 12(b)(6), 23 and 23.1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, dismissing each of Counts I, II and III to the extent they seek relief (a) on behalf of funds of which plaintiff is not a shareholder, and (b) on behalf of shareholders of funds of which plaintiff is not a shareholder, on the ground that a party may not maintain an action on behalf of a corporation, or shareholders of a corporation unless he himself is a shareholder of that corporation;

(4) Pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, dismissing Counts II and III for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted on the ground the conspiracy alleged therein does not constitute a violation of the statutes under which relief is sought;

Notice of Motion

(5) Pursuant to Rule 12(b)(2) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, dismissing the action on the ground that the Court does not have jurisdiction over the persons of defendants;

(6) Pursuant to Rule 12(b)(3) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, dismissing the action on the ground that it was brought and is pending in the wrong district;

(7) Pursuant to Rule 12(b)(4) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, dismissing the action on the ground of insufficiency of process;

(8) Pursuant to Rule 12(b)(5) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, dismissing the action on the ground of insufficiency of service of process;

(9) Pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, dismissing the Complaint and each count thereof on the ground that it fails to state a claim upon which relief can be granted; and

(10) For such other and further relief as to the Court may be just and proper.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the defendants will make, on a date to be fixed by the Court, all other motions described as "Second Group" and "Third Group" in Attachment B to the "Proposed Agenda for Conference of April 18, 1969", heretofore filed herein.

Gentlemen:

The Clerk of our Court has brought to my attention the filing of a Notice of Motions on Friday, April 25, 1969, in the above entitled cause.

In view of my heavily congested calendar, I am requesting that you brief the first 4 Motions only attacking the capacity of the plaintiff to sue and maintain his action. The Briefs are to be filed in accordance with the time schedule established at the informal conference held on Friday, April 18, 1969.

Letter of Hon. Mitchell H. Cohen to counsel dated April 29, 1969

After these Motions have been briefed, argued and determined, you will be further advised as to the time within which Briefs are to be filed in the remaining Motions.

Would you both be good enough to have copies made of this letter for distribution to the appropriate counsel?

Yours very sincerely,

Motion of Defendants The Dreyfus Fund, Inc., Fidelity Trend Fund, Inc., Manhattan Fund, Inc. and The Putnam Growth Fund To Dismiss The Complaint

The above-named defendants move the court pursuant to Rule 12 (b)(6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure:

1. To dismiss the complaint for failure to state a cause of action inasmuch as the complaint does not allege with particularity the efforts made by the plaintiff to obtain the action he desires from their directors or comparable authority and the reasons for his failure to obtain such action or his failure to make such efforts, as required in derivative actions by shareholders under Rule 23.1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

2. In addition, The Putnam Growth Fund and Fidelity Trend Fund, Inc., move to dismiss the complaint as to them, on the ground that the plaintiff has failed to state a cause of action inasmuch as the complaint does not allege with particularity the plaintiff's efforts to obtain the action he desires from their shareholders.

Excerpts from transcript of hearing before Pettine, C. J., on May 12, 1972

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS

Before: Chief Judge R. J. Pettine
Friday, May 12, 1972

[32] THE COURT: You are asking the Court then to look just to the face of the complaint?

MR. PITTINSKY: That is correct, your Honor.

THE COURT: And apply the basic rule that must be accepted as truthful for the purpose of these motions.

MR. PITTINSKY: That is correct, your Honor. And that is exactly what the Court did in the cases we have cited. It's what the Court did in Leavitt v. Johnson and I will point that out on p. 817 they discuss the fact that there were some other papers filed, and this could have been treated as a motion for summary judgment, but they chose not to do it because they said, "We can't do that without a well developed, factual record, therefore, we limit ourselves to the face of the complaint." That's what they held in Leavitt v. Johnson.

THE COURT: You also represent that your complaint is sufficient in making the same allegation that you now argue?

MR. PITTINSKY: That is correct, your Honor.

In Re KMF Actions, MDL-78 (All Cases)

Dear Mr. Peck:

We have received a copy of the proposed form of Order submitted by liaison counsel on behalf of all defendants. On behalf of plaintiff, we object to paragraph 5 of defendants' proposed form of Order because said paragraph omits the words "without prejudice."

Insofar as the form of Order entered by Judge Pettine to reflect the rulings contained in his Opinion of June 7, 1972 is concerned, our reading of Judge Pettine's Opinion indicates the aforesaid action was dismissed for failure to make a demand upon the shareholders of two of the four Kauffman funds and the directors of all four Kauffman funds. In short, the commencement of the aforesaid action was held to be premature by Judge Pettine.

Accordingly, plaintiff respectfully suggests that paragraph 5 of defendants' proposed form of Order be amended to read as follows:

> "5. The cause be and the same hereby is dismissed without prejudice as to all defendants and final judgment be and the same hereby is entered in their favor;

Letter of David H. Pittinsky, Esq., to Russell H. Peck, Esq., dated June 26, 1972 and the Clerk of this Court shall give prompt notice hereof by mailing copies of this Order and the Court's Opinion to the Clerk, Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation, and to the Clerks of each of the transferor District Courts herein."

Very truly yours,

/s/ DAVID H. PITTINSKY
